A TALK WITH MR. SCREWS. This afternoon I had a lengthy talk with Ir. Wallace Screws, the brilliant editor of the atgomery Advertiser, who has led the fight ainst Commissioner Kolb, and to whom, ore than anybody else, is due the big vote than any body eise, is due the big vote than any body eight up against Kolb. Mr. Screws is about fity years of age, with whitened hair but brillant eye, which beams upon you with a penetration that indicates the intensity which her beneath it. He has served his state in time of war, as well as in the piping days of pace. Fresh from the ranks of the confederate army, whose fortunes he had followed for four years, he returned to Montgomery and helped to resuscitate the Advertiser, which had been suppressed by order of the federal military authorities. Through the columns of that paper he defended his people from the slanders of radicalism, rallied mem to the standard of democracy, imbued them with his own spirit of courage and self-williance and blazed the way to the glorious retemption of his state from the coils of radicalism and negro rule. From this imperfect detription of the man and of his work, the intensity of his convictions may be judged. Haven ight up against Kolb. Mr. Screws is about

it was his zeal for the welfare of this cause which he held so dear that he finally drifted lead of the new alliance movement, which "I am in favor of the original principles of the Farmers' alliance," said he, in beginning.

I have always felt that in democracy the farmers would find their best protection.
These principles of the alliance being based an antural justice, meet my fullest endorsement. It was not until certain leaders of the disance went to St. Louis and misrepresented being poople, pledged them to the alliance in defiance to party caucus, with the Knights of labor for the accomplishment of ends, which find no place in the democoatic creed. When white men went to St. Louis and presumed to pledge the white men of Alabama against the caucus decisions of the only party through whose strength white supremacy is made secure, I felt that the time had come to sound he note of warning.

WHAT CAUSED THE QUARREL. "It is not true that the Auburn resolution ciatory of the Advertiser had anything do with my opposition to Captain Kolb. Durthe sessions of the alliance I published long the current news of the day an article out the action of the Liverpool cotton exnge in regard to the tare on cotton bag-The same article was published in newspapers as legitimate news of the Following this came resolutions which comptly met, disproved and disposed of nce and for all; that since that time they e not been mentioned, and form no part of Kolb, Adams and associates, and criticized their action as imperiling democratic as fety, that President Adams issued his boycott notice. From this you will see that the war of the Advertiser was based neither on the Auburn resolutions nor on the boycott, but was pirsued for a higher purpose.

"I saw the integrity of the democratic party threatened. I saw Kotb and associates pulling the wool over the eyes of the hencet alliancemen of the state. I saw these leaders training with independents, greenbackers, soreheads and every element antagonistic to democracy. I saw them bringing about a mongrel condition of things which would restore the worst features of the days of reconstruction. I had no personal feeling in the matter. The Advertiser had no feeling in the matter. It was the simple performance of a public duty which a public journal owes its readers, to warn them of the dangers ahead and of the effect of the iniquitous alliances being formed with leaders which had no sympathy with democracy. Actuated by this feeling of patriotism, knowing only the democratic party and blind to the existence of mere individuals, the Advertiser fought for the election of democratic delegates to a state convention on democratic dines and for the nomination of a candidate for governor on his record as a tried and true democrat."

"So careful was the Advertiser to give no cause for impugning the motives that it did not even indicate a preference for any man for governor. There was Captain Tom Jones in the field, a resident of our city of publication; the confidant of Lee and Gordon, a man who shed his blood even after the war closed in defense of his neighbors; brave, knightly, courteons, cultured, a gentleman of such stuff as are the Bayards made. Even a mino of this character, so pure and unsullied, though he had every claim upon our support, we did not support because by so doing we might have been accused of selfish motives or of trying to advance the interests of a candidate. I state these things thus in detail to show that

"As to Captain Kolb himself we have published matter not in a spirit of persecution, but to inform the people of the record of a man who sought the highest honor in their gift. His record as commissioner of agriculture was a fair subject of consideration when he sought a higher office. The Advertiser printed Captain Kolb's expense account, showing that he had charged the state for expenses over roads on which he had free passes. It was in his power to answer the charges by official documents, if they existed. One case reported by Mr. Bissell, of Wilcox, he was forced to admit, and his only explanation was that he had made a mistake. Here is a letter from a prominent railroad manager, who is known all over the union, which I ask you to read for yourself."

I presume you will be able to get sufficient proof from other roads, since I presume he is acting the same way with others as he is with us."

Mr. Screws spoke with great carnestness and energy. I asked him if it was true that the Advertiser had suffered any loss of circu-

the Advertiser had suffered any loss of circulation?

"No, sir," he replied, emphatically. "Our circulation is greater than it has ever been. The people of Alabama are too high-spirited and independent to be coerced by boycotts, or to receive their reading matter from the hands of a Muse. I have numerous letters from alliancemen which prove that they understand the methods of Kolb and Adams, and which assure me that the course of the Advertiser has been for the best interest of the state."

Without presuming to take part or side in the quarrel of a contemporary in another state, this much at least is not out of place. The Advertiser has displayed rare courage in the fight. It has been severe, often harshly so, but its editor is one of those men who had to do battle in reconstruction times, and the method then was to strike straight from the

THROUGH A DRAWBRIDGE. An Awful Accident in California-Thirteen

Lives Lost. SAN FRANCISCO, May 30 .-- A train went through a drawbridge near Oakland this after-noon and several lives were lost. The train was a local one, connecting Oakland with San Francisco ferry boats. A yacht had just passed through the draw and the keeper could not close it in time. The road curves sharply not close it in time. The road curves sharply a short distance from the creek, and when the engineer saw the draw could not be closed in time, he endeavored to stop, but his train was too heavy and he failed. The engine with the tender and first car went overboard and the front end of the second car broke open and many passengers fell into the water. The car which had followed the engine to the bottom soon rose, and such of the passengers as had escaped were picked up by yachts and other boats which gathered at the scene. The car was towed into shallow water, a hole cut in the roof, and thirteen bodies taken out.

A list of the identified is as follows: Martin Kelly, of Oakland, assistant chief wharfinger for the state; A. H. Austin, of Austin & Phelps, of San Francisco; Miss Florence Austin; Mrs. Bryan O'Connor, widow of the deceased member of O'Connor, widow of the deceased member of O'Connor, widow of the deceased member of O'Connor, Maffett & Co., San Francisco; J. R. Ewing, sewing-machine agent at Oakland; E. R. Robinson, San Francisco; Luigi Maelista, San Francisco; Captain John Dwyer, Sacramento; Mr. Williams, San Francisco; H. W. Auld, colored, Honolulu; the two Misses Kennan, San Francisco.

The thirteenth body was that of a Japanese boy, supposed to be H. Malerta, of San Francisco. It is not at all certain that these are all who lost their lives. A late dispatch says the engineer and fireman were both saved.

MRS. M'ANNALLY'S CLAIM

To Property in Her Husband's Possession—A Suit for Divorce.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 30.—[Special.]—Mrs. Catharine McAnnally has filed suit for divorce from her husband, Pat McAnnally, charging him with cruelty and drunkenness. She has also obtained from the court an injunction restraining him from coming on the charging him with cruelty and drunkenness. She has also obtained from the court an injunction restraining him from coming on the premises, or in any way interfering with the property. McAnnally owns improved property worth $100,000, and has an income something like $10,000 a year from rents. He is seventy years old and his wife only a few years younger. Mrs. McAnnally claims the property as her ewn, and is trying to obtain sole possession. They are the parents of the first child born in Birmingham, and on that account were given a lot in the heart of the city. McAnnally at that time was a poor brick-layer. He held the lot until it was worth several thousand dollars, then sold it and invested the money in suburban property, which is now fully worth $100,000. Mrs. McAnnally bases her claim to the property on the ground that, being the mother of the child on whose account they received the lot, she has the strongest claim.

To Invade Mexico.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, May 30.—[Special.]—
Information reached here today from Laredo that it has been discovered that a large number of Mexicans in that and other border towns are engaged in organizing a revolutionary party to invade Mexico. The leaders of the movement will be arrested if found on Mexican soil. Such an undertaking is regarded as great folly.

A GRAVEYARD SPEECH. INGALIS RANTS ON GETTYSBURG

BATTLEFIELD, WHERE BRAVE MEN GAVE UP LIFE,

And Charges Robert E. Lee With Being s Perjurer and Traitor-Observance of Decoration Day Over the Union.

GRTTYSBURG, May 30.—Much greater crowds than usual attended the memorial services at Gettysburg battlefield, drawn largely by the fact that a great part of the members of both houses of congress would be present and that Senator Ingalis was the orator of the

After impressive services conducted by Grand Army posts, and strewing the graves with flowers in profusion the throng assem-bled around the rostrum where Senator Ingalls was introduced by Mr. McPherson, master of ceremonies. Mr. Ingalls's speech was long, and only extracts can be here given.

galls was introduced by Mr. McPherson, master of ceremonies, Mr. Ingalls's speech was long, and only extracts can be here given.

Mr. President, he said: The battle-field of Gettysburg! What a tumult of enthusasm, of joy and of grief, of triumph, of sadness, of defeat, of final victory, rise in the heart at the repetition of that name. The high tide of rebellion broke on this field and along these rocky hills in a flood of blood and flame that ebbed away at Appomattox. Three summer days changed this hamlet to an epoch, and gave to this locality an immortality equal to Marathon, Marston Moor and Waterbo. The orator, who speaks upon this anniversary, no matter how great his fame or name, will be dwarfed by the stupendous tragedy enacted here, and will sink into insignificance before that great man who, standing almost within hearing of the spot, dedicated the place almost twenty-seven years ago.

It is just twenty-five years since the last shot was fired; twenty-five years since the hosts were marshaled for the last review. They assembled within the shadow of the dome of the capitol they had saved. The splendor of the vernal sun illuminated the scene and shimmered on the flag as it gleamed in its glory above them, the size of the rejuvenated republic. It was a host without number who welcomed with immitted the scene and shimmered on the flag as it gleamed in the flag. Had it not been for their sacrifices and that of their sleeping comrades this flag would have been a dishonored rag; the centennial of our republic would not have been celebrated, and the United States would have disappeared and in its place there would have one petty nationalities, discordant and belligerent, Had not more than two million men offered their lives, strength and services for its protection, we should have been celebrated, and the United States would have been celebrating the twenty-ninth anniversary of the confederacy. The constitution of the United States would have been for their since protection, we should have been a catastrophe; and that the nation might be perpetuated.

HE WOULD HAVE HIDDEN A LITTLE FLAG.

Ideas are immortal. They cannot be annihilated. I have sometimes thought what would have been our emotions had the rebellion been successful. Suppose the dome of the capitol stooped to its base. Suppose Robert Toombs fulfilled his insolent mennee to count fits slaves within the shadow of Bunker Hill monument. Suppose the stars and stripes had gane down in defeat before the stars and bars, what would have been our emotion? I confess for myself to have never ceased to implore that all men might be free; to hope that some time, by some desperate battle, the union might have been restored I should have kept in some secret repository, some emblem of the stars and stripes which I would have taught my children to love and cherish.

Now, in view of the occurrences of the last two days in the extinct capitol of the extinct confederacy, I wish to say a few words. I have no desire, on this sacred occasion, to revert to any subject that is inconsistent with the solemnity of the hour, but unless the ideas for which our dead died were right, they have deed in vain. But the only regret that seems to be felt by our adversaries is that in the rebellion they failed to succeed. HE WOULD HAVE HIDDEN A LITTLE FLAG.

HE SLANDERS LEE.
Robert E. Lee was undoubtedly one of the greathe age-lofty of cl life, and with a lineage leading back to the morning of patriotism in this hemisphere. He was "without fear and without reproach."

Had he adhered to the sentiments expressed Had he adhered to the sentiments expressed shortly before the rebellion he would today have been the foremost citizen of this republic. He was offered the command of our armies. For twenty-five years his sword had been under the flag of the republic. He had been educated at her expense and had taken an oath to support her constitution and her laws, but he violated his oath, put aside his sword, and took the leadership of the most causeless rebellion since the devil rebeled against the sanctity of heaven, and yet in perjury and in violation of faith and honor, on a day for twenty-five years made sacred, those who profess to have accepted the results of the war in good faith—selecting this occasion in all other anniversaries of the 385 days of the year—with every augmentation of insolency point to the south that this is an example after which they should copy. A confederate flag is placed in the hand of Washington. [Cries of "shame, shame."] point to the south that this is an example after which they should copy. A confederate flag is placed in the hand of Washington. [Cries of "shame, shame."]

What wonder if the dead should cry against sacrilege. We are told God alone knows which side was right. To make the constitution of the United States the supreme law of freemen, milions enlisted and thousands gave up their lives, wives were widowed, children orphaned and yet one-half of the rising generation is being taught that "God alone knows which was right."

Carnage raged on hundreds of battle fields. Now the sun rises on no master and sets on no slave. The shame of the republic is washed out. Liberty is the law of the land, and yet "God alone knows which was right."

If we were not right, if nationality is not better than secession, then these ceremonies are without significance. The war for the union was the greatest crime of the century, and our soldiers rank with successful puglists, who fight in the ring for the champlonship belt of the world. If they were not right, national morality is fiction, loyalty a name, and patriotism a fatal malady of the body politic. This tendency of instruction—a duty we owe the future that our relations to that great conflict be understood, and that our dead did not die in vain. It is not necessary to disparage the bravery of adversaries. Let them rear monuments to their dead and cherish their deeds; let them enjogize the lost cause; let them carry their stars and bars. These are matters of taste, which they must decide for themselves. There is no other country under the sun that would permit such transactions. They are our countrymen, united to us by common heritage, so they say; but when they assert that Lincoln and Davis, Grantand Lee, Logan and Jackson, were equal, and that "God alone knows which was right;" it is sacrilige of the vilest type and needs rebuske. The senator was listened to with the greatest attention and trequently applauded.

PRESIDENT HARRISON SPEAKS.

President Harrison then spoke as follows:
Mr. Chairman and Fellow-Citizens: I thank you most sincerely for this cordial greeting, but I shall not be betraved by it into a lengthy speech. The selection of this day for these exercises—ad any consecrated to the memory of those who died that there might be one flag of honor and authority in this republic (Applause), is most fitting. Turning again from the field to councils of state, he stood among the great debaters that have made our national congress illustrious. What he might have been, or done as president of the United States, is chiefly left to friendly augury, based upon a career that had no incident of failure or inadequacy. [Applause.]

The cruel circumstances attending his death had but one amelioration—that a space of life was given him to teach from his dying bed the great lesson of patience and forbearance. "O, Weep for the Brave," was sung by the memorial chorus. This was followed by brief ceremonies by the Knights Templar, after which the doxology was sung, and the benediction pronounced by Rev. T.D. Power, D.D., of Washington.

Then followed an impressive service by the Knights Templar, Grand Captain-General M. J. Houck, Grand Commander Henry Perkins and Grand Prelate L. F. VanCleve officiating. The service consisted of responsive reading, music, and then followed an invocation by the grand prelate. This closed the exercises, and the crowds returned to the city.

DECORATION DAY.

Scattering the Spring Flowers upon the Soldiers' Graves. Washington, May 30.—Decoration Day was observed as a general holiday in this city, and all government departments, district offices, banks and many business houses were closed. The day was clear and pleasant, and large numbers of people attended the ceremonies at the various cemeteries, while many others went fishing on picnics or on excursions. The procession moved from Fifteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue at 10 o'clock, up Fif-teenth street to Pennsylvania avenue, along that avenue and M street to the aqueduc bridge in West Washington, where the parade was dismissed. The column was composed of Grand Army posts, Sons of Veterans, district militia and mounted police, and at its head marched the full Marine band.

Washington, May 30.—The most striking feature of the work of the supreme court of the United States during the term ended last Friday, was the large number and variety of cases involving the construction of the interstate commerce clause of the federal constitution. Indeed this latter class of cases came before the court with such frequency. came before the court with such frequency that Justice Miller, in an opinion on the last day of the term, was moved to remark, with velvety sarcasm, that this was another one of the frequent instances of late in which it was sought, on all sorts of pretexts, to make the supreme court pass upon every motion for a writ of habeas corpus that could be devised by

MAY TAKE A. RECESS

FROM THE FIRST OF JULY UNTIL

SEVERAL CONGRESSMEN FAVOR IT.

But Spenker Reed May Object to the Schame The Tea Party at Matt Quay's House-Washington Gossip.

Washington, May 30.—[Special.]—There is a movement on foot in the senate to have congress take a recess from the first of July to the first of October. The reason the men who have proposed this assign is that the senate finance committee will take at least three months to prepare a tariff bill, to report to the senate as a substitute for the house bill and that while this committee is at work there will be no business for the houses to transact outside of that which they will finish by the first of July. The tariff bill, of course, has something to do with the movement, but there are other reasons more important to the average member of the lower house. Indeed every member of the house, irrespective of party, wants to get home to look after re-election and as the Farmers' alliance is after the scalp of the majority of southern members, they are highly in favor of WASHINGTON, May 30.-[Special.]-There for the scalp of the majority of southern members, they are highly in favor of such a programme. Each and every one of them want to go to their districts as soon as possible, and speak to their people about the alliance measures which are now agitating the farmers, for they believe if they have no opportunity to do this, many of them will have to accept defeat. While the movement was started without the knowledge of any of the members of the house, there is no doubt but that that body will be perfectly willing, and indeed, glad to co-operate with the senate to such a programme. If it is carried through, of course the reason assigned will be that now assigned by the senate, to give the senate finance committee time to prepare and report to the senate a tariff bill. Of course it will be a report upon the house bill, but that bill will be so battered and mutilated, that even McKinley himself will not recognize it when it is reported back.

BOTH HOUSES FAVOR IT.

This programme was proposed by a member of the finance committee, and it will probably come before the senate in a few days. Unless ome members of the committee object, the chances are that a large majority of both houses will favor it. However, before any-thing is done, Tom Reed will have to fix a day for the consideration of the national election law bill, and unless he believes it can be rushed through both houses and have the president's signature before that time, the recess will not be taken. Reed is, however, in favor of congress adjourning early. He believes a long session would injure his party. He, however, wants the tariff bill passed before the fall election; but if this cannot be done without keeping congress in session until September, he would favor a recess just after the passage of an election law bill.

The republicans are as anxious to get home and look after their re-elections as the southern democrats, and all want to get away as early as possible.

QUAY'S LITTLE TRAPARTY.

QUAY'S LITTLE TEAPARTY.

The republican national executive committee met at Senator Quay's house tonight. It was a dinner party, but the business of the committee was discussed around the board. The matter of money for the campaign and other questions were freely discussed. Quay himself brought up the question of the efforts that are being made to depose him from the chairmanship of the national committee. It chairmanship of the national committee. It is needless to say that all present were Quay men, and renewed their allegiance to the "boss." It seems that Harrison himself fears the Pennsylvanians, for he did not make the formal demand expected to have Quay deposed. There it no doubt, however, but that he wants the Penusylvanian to step down and out, but he fears to make the demand of the committee just now. Qua knows that, and is determined to hold out and see that some other man is nominated by the republican party in 1892. Indeed, war quiet way has undoubtedly been declared between the president and the boss. The committee decided tonight that a national election law was necessary to the success of the party, and will request the republican caucus committee of the house to pass it.

HE SWINDLED THE ORPHANS. Treasurer File Makes Confession of His

Defalcation. PHILADELPHIA, May 30 .- It has leaked out that Joh C. File, late treasurer of the Luther-an Orphans' home, is a defaulter in about $35,000. File has been treasurer of the home since 1872. It was the policy of the board of directors of the home not to touch the endowments, which year after year were made, but to defray the working expenses of the institu-tion from interest and donations. The particular accounts bearing upon the latter have been found to be accurate in every particular. The defalcations are confined to the endowment fund. This fund should amount to $43,.
000. File had several times been ordered to make a report to the directors, but under one pretense or another, he failed to do so, until the last meeting, when he broke down and admitted having misappropriated the funds. Ha was allowed to depart after having handed over a statement which showed that the only securities he was possessed of were some city sixes, railroad, canal and other bonds, amounting altogether to some $8,000. Of these, some are utterly valueless. It is believed that the only assets remaining cannot realize more than $6,000. "Mortgages" and bonds and stocks which had figured continually in samany annual reports, were found to be fictitious and to have been used by the treasurer as a convenient cloak to account for investments that had never been made. The directors will decide at their meeting on Monday next what action to pursue.

MAHONE WAS ABSENT,

Unveiling.

Richmond, Va., May 30.—[Special.]—The failure of Mahone to attend the unveiling yesterday has been commented on no little here among the notable confederates. In a letter to a friend in which he explains that business engagements detained him in the mountains of Tazewell county, Virginia, Mahone says:

My enforced absence will neither lessen my admiration for the veterans, and especially for the brave men who formed the brigade and division which it was my pride and honor to command, nor my exalted esteem for General R. E. Lee. Whatever my views now of the sectional contest and my duty as an ex-confederate soldier under a restored union and the citizenship it carries, the glory of my life is that I served in his army and had the distinguished honor of commanding such brigade and division.

Macon, Ga., May 30.—[Special.]—One hundred or more people attended the "camp fire" at the Hotel Lanier tonight. In the break-fast-room of the hotel was served a regular war-time meal—"hard tack" and coffee. Among those present were some of the most prominent citizens of Macon, and ex-confederates. Ten toasts were responded to by both union and confederate soldiers.

HARMONY GROVE, Ga., May 30.—[Special.]—The Farmers' Alliance of Banks, Franklin, Madison and Jackson counties have decided to build a $30,000 cotton-seed oil mill at some point on the Northeastern railroad, either here, in Maysville or Nicholson. There was a mass meeting of the citizens of this place last Wedesday night, when a committee composed of our best business men was appointed to select a suitable lot for the site of this mill. This lot, if it is acceptable to the alliance, will then be purchased by the town and donated to the alliance for an oil mill location. All our citizens are thoroughly aroused upon this question, and they will leave no stone unturned in their mitted efforts to secure the location of this mill in or near our town.

fourth Monday in June. Hon. D. M. Roberts, judge of the Oconee circuit, will preside here at that time, and will dispose of the cases in which Judge Guerry is disqualified. During the three days in which the court was in session, a great deal of business was done, and several grave criminal cases were tried.
Hudgins and Davis, the two white men who burgiarized Dr. I. D. Graves's store, a short time since, were each convicted. The former was sentenced to twenty years in the penitentiary but Davis got off with only one year. In his case the evidence showed that he was the dupe of Hudgins, and the jury therefore recommended him to the

SYRUP FROM MELONS.

An Interesting Subject Brought Before the Melon-Growers

Melon-Gtowers

Albany, Ga., May 30.—[Special.]—The watermelons in this section are looking unusually promising now. The heavy winds and rains of two weeks ago appeared to retard them, and many of the growers feared the crop would be a failure. The weather being extremely favorable during the last five or six days, the melons are looking splendidly. Specimens weighing from twelve to fifteen pounds are very numerous, and melons weighing from eight to ten pounds are the rule rather than the exception. A drive by the fields shows luxuriant vines with melons showing thickly among them.

fields shows luxuriant vines with melons showing thickly among them.

At the recent Melon-Growers' convention many interesting facts were brought out. During the recess caused by the retiring of the marketing committee to make up their report, a desultory conversation followed. Experiences in endeavoring to make sugar and syrup from melons were given. In South Carolina it had proved a failure, the syrup being like sorghum—not crystallizing. An Atlanta man came to the front and reported that Liebig and other chemists had tested aud found more sugar in these than in any other vegtetable save sugar-cane.

The only trouble found in making syrup and the only trouble round in making syrup and sugar from the melon was to separate it from the woody fibre. This might be obviated by clarifying the juice by straining it through la layer of sand and charcoal.

Colonel Nelson Tift was much interested in bringing out this information, stating that many years ago excellent melon syrup was made in this vicinity.

that many years ago excellent melon syrup was made in this vicinity by the late Jonathan Davis upon his planta-tion near Albany. If this could be success-fully accomplished, it would add from $20 to $40 per acre to the melon-growers, from the fruit left upon their fields. He asked the members to experiment in syrup and sugar making from the melon, and report to the as-sociation at the close of the season.

THE SHOOTING OF MR. WARE. It Is Thought the Assassins Have Been

ATHENS, Ga., May 30.—[Special.]—The attempted assassination of Mr. E. G. Ware, in Oconee county, is beginning to become clearer and it is said the would-be assassins have been spotted. Some time since Mr. Ware's barns were burned, and it-is said a great deal of enmity existed between him and other parties in the county on account of some existing differ-ences in regard to a business transaction. It is suspected that the same person who set the barn on fire attempted the murder of Mr. Ware on his way home. The injured man is not so hally wounded as west first thought ware on his way home. The injured man is not so badly wounded as was at first thought, although his wounds are quite painful. His left arm is badly shattered and may have to be amputated; but if blood poison does not set in he will safely pull through. Dr. W. B. Steedly, of Athens, is attending him.

ATTACKED BY NEGROES.

THREE BRUTAL DARKEYS ASSAULT

The Wife of a Farmer of Gwinnett County-Parties in Search of the Fiends—There May Be a Lynching.

LAWRENCEVILLE, Ga., May 30.—[Special.]— Yesterday afternoon, between 3 and 4 o'clock, a most brutal and fiendish outrage was per-petrated upon the person of the wife of John Taylor, son of S. F. Taylor, a prominent and an honorable citizen of the county, who lives three miles east of Suwanee, on the Ivey creek, by three negroes. Mrs. Taylor says that she was alone working in the garden when she heard footsteps, and on looking up saw three negroes, one saying: "G—d d—n you, what are you doing?" She began to scream, but a big black hand was put over her mouth and she was told to hush or she would be killed. she was told to hush or she would be killed. These negroes carried her a mile from her home into the woods. She was left alone, and as best she could managed after some time to get home. She is in bed today and suffering from the brutes' attacks. She did not know the negroes. Two of them were black, one a coal black, the third one was a yellow, low, chunky negro, with light mustache. They had a jug of whisky along. Mrs. Taylor's clothes were saturated with whisky. She can't remember everything that occurred, and thinks she must have been senseless or unconscious for awhile. Efforts are being made to canture these devils, of course, but made to capture these devils, of course, but not the organized efforts that should be. Re-newed efforts will be made from citizens of Buford, Suwanee and Lawrenceville, and the negroes will be caught, if possible. BAINBRIDGE'S STRIDES.

BAINBRIDGE, Ga., May 30.—[Special.]—Our town is improving. We have less than two thousand people, yet are making rapid strides to double that number in a short while. Our to double that number in a short while. Our ice factory is about completed; a system of electric lights is being put up, and a $30,000 cotton compress has been purchased and $310 to in operation by the first of September. This compress is of the Campbell pattern, and was sold by Mr. John Whitehead, of Albany, Ga., the gentlemanly agent. We expect to quadruple our cotton receipts this winter. Our people from now on expect to march at the head of the procession.

of the procession.

As an evidence that Bainbridge is not unknown to the outer world, permit us to remark that even in the nutmeg state of Connecticut processing and pulling up and coming manufacturers are pulling up and coming down to locate in our beautiful town on the Flint. The firm of G. S. Rorke & Co., of New Stonington, Conn., has written a letter to the editors of the Democrat in which they say that after a careful and patient examination of the various towns in Georgia, they have decided to various towns in Georgia, they have decided to locate their large manufactory in Bainbridge. They manufacture all sorts of brooms, and knit goods—cotton, woolen and silk underwear. They employ over one hundred operatives, and will begin transferring their plant from Connecticut to Bainbridge next month. They hope to have their mill running by the 1st of December. This removal will be followed by others for the day is not for distant when the others, for the day is not far distant when the great majority of the New England manufacturers will come south to keep their business from going to destruction. This will settle the race question, by the way.

Baseball at Hiawasse.

HIAWASSE, Ga., May 30.—[Special.]—The mountains have again been electrified by the second match game of baseball between the Hiawasse and Young Harris baseball clubs, which was played on the grounds of the former Saturday, the 24th instant. A larger crowd has not been seen in Hiawasse lately than on this occasion. Interest and excitement ran year, high from the hearinging of the crame than on this occasion. Interest and excitement ran very high from the beginning of the game, and every turn was eagerly watched by the friends of the contesting clubs. As the game drew to a close it was clear that the Hiawasse club, which was defeated by only two scored runs in the first contest, would be the victors. When the nine innings were finished, and the announcement made, "38 to 7, in favor of Hiawassee," the crowd almost went wild with enthusiasm, and the students of Hiawassee High school, headed by Professors O'Kelley and Havison, seized the triumphant nine and bore them from the field amid shouts of applause that savored of ancient Rome at the celebration of the Olympian games. celebration of the Olympian games.

The block is owned by the estates of Smetz and John McMahon, and the loss of $40,000 on the building is equally divided between the estates. The building was an old one. The origin of the fire is a mystery.

Colonel Morton's Candidacy.

ATHENS, Ga., May 29.—[Special.]—The political field in Clarke was given another Richmond today in the person of Colonel William J. Morton, one of Clarke county's most respected citizens. Colonel Morton goes into the race championing the cause of those who believe that Athens should be put under the local option law, and that liquor should be brought back to Athens. Colonel Morton is one of the most popular men in Clarke county, and will make a strong race. The dry vote is largely divided, as is also the wet, and with four candidates in the field things are somewhat mixed.

The Blessed Showers.

The Blessed Showers.

CLINTON, Ga., May 30.—[Special.]—The continued rains are making the crops grow in a hurry, but the farmers are anxious for sunshine and fair weather that they may get rid of the grass, which is coming, and cut their oats which are ripening rapidly. The oat crop is a great deal better in this section than was anticipated in March. It is generally good, save on the red places where it was killed during the cold snap in early spring. There is very little fruit, and the smallest crop of wild plums there has been in years.

Lays His Case Before the Voters of the Lays His Case Before the Voters of the Seventh District.

From the Rome, Ga., Tribune.

Washington, D. C., May 24, 1800.—Editor Tribune of the 22d instant, with Mr. Felix Corput, he is reported as follows: "Colonel Clements has failed for forty days to answer the specific queries propounded to him by the Farmers' Alliance; that he has acknowledged the receipt of the queries, but has not answered."

Again, in his published call of the 21st instant for an alliance meeting on June 4th, Mr. Corput refers to resolutions adopted April 16th, and forwarded to me "on that day."

When Mr. Corput penned this call for the meeting of June 4th, and at the time he is reported to have used the language above quoted, he had a letter from me, written May 13th, in answer to one from him, in which I had said to him, as I had also to the committee appointed to communicate with me, that the resolutions were left in the post-office at the house of representatives here by Mr. C. W. Macune, of this city, on April 30th, just two weeks after their adoption at Rome. For the fact that they were sent to Mr. Macune, and detained from me in this manner, when an early reply was asked, I am in no way responsible.

The people throughout the district will bear me witness that it has not been my custom to refuse answers to communications, whether of a public or private nature. Sometimes there are unavoidable causes of delay. In this case it was two weeks after the resolutions were adopted before they were placed in my hands. My reply was sent on the 19th or 20th, so I did not have them longer than twenty days; and in the meantime had written, both to the committee and Mr. Corput, acknowledging the receipt of resolutions, explaining delay and promising a candid reply.

It is possible that an effort is being made to prejudice the minds of fair and just alliancemen by withholding some of the facts? Considering the magnitude and Importance of the questions involved, will any just or wise citizen say that such time as I could snatch, within twenty days day. I mean the "McKinley tarin oil." Statement.

Editor, simply that justice may be done, I have asked for sufficient of your space to make this statement.

Let me add that in the depths of my hear I feel greater concern for a correct understanding of the existing depression and the application of the right remedy than I do for a re-election. There is no reward to a public servant equal to that of the confidence of the people who have entrusted him with their interests. Surely the farmers of the seventh district cannot, if they judge me by my votes, be led to think that I am not their friend. Any one has a perfect right to run for congress; but let questions and candidates be openly, fully and fairly considered.

Born and reared on a farm, there is no kind of work usually done in our country by farmers that I have not done with my own hands. A majority of my most intimate relations and friends, from childhood up, have been farmers.

Does not every reasonable motive, whether from a sense of public duty, or private obligation, dictate that I should be their friend? Knowing the inequalities of existing laws against them, I have lost no opportunity to vote for what I have lost no opportunity to vote for what I have lost no opportunity to vote for reclamation of public lands from railroads, and against alien ownership of the same; against the extension of the national banking system; also in favor of the state and interstate railroad commissions.

But I will not continue this enumeration, as I have already said much more than I intended to when I began. If the farmers and I agree on a dozen great questions, and disagree as to the wisdom of one plan which, they admit, is an experiment, costing millions to try it, and to which they say they are not wedded, but want it "or something better," shall I be adjudged their enemy?

I know the most of them personally. They are just men and will not so judge me. They may prefer another, this they have a perfect right to do, but they will accord to me the right to follow the di

THE MELON GROWERS.

A Local Melon Growers' Association Organized.

QUITMAN, Ga., May 30.—[Special.]—The melon growers of Brooks and Thomas counties met here today and organized a local melon growers' association. A number of speeches were made, and much interest and enthusiasm was manifested. W. R. Lalley, of Dixie, was elected president; Joseph S. Morton, of Boston, vice-president; A. J. Stanaland, of Boston, secretary. J. R. Forrester, of Albany, offered to guaran-tee $75 per car load for melons up to July 1st, $60 to July 15th, and $50 after July 15th. This offer was conditioned upon the melon weighing not less than eighteen pounds and upon ninety per cent of the melon growers accepting the proposition. After a harmonious and profitable session, the association adjourned to meet here June 28th. An invitation was extended to the melon men of Lowndes county to join the association at its next meeting. President Lalley says that the melon outlook is good, and that melons will be shipped by the 10th of June.

DALTON, Ga., May 30.—[Special.]—The graduating exercises of the Dalton high school came off last night and created quite a stir in our unassuming but aspiring little city. The programme was in charge of Miss Morris, principal of the school, which was in itself a guarantee of utmost success, and which gave evident satisfaction to the most fastidious. The young ladies who received their diplomas were Miss Lizzie Tennyson Roberts, Miss Nina Clay Kenner and Miss Elizabeth Maysie O'Neill. It Kenner and Miss Elizabeth Maysie O'Neill. It were invidious to particularize these little ladies in their different departments, but it is only fair to say that they acquitted themselves in a manner to reflect the very highest honor on their teachers. The opera-house was filled with an appreciative audience, and compliments of a high character were passed on the management of the school. It has been conceded that under the superintendence of Professor Harper, the Dalton public schools have reached a pitch not far surpassed by any other city in the state.

Baseball at Oxford.

OXFORD, Ga., May 30.—[Special.]—The best played and most evenly contested game of ball seen on our diamond this year, was played yesterday between the junior class nine and a nine selected from the rest of the college. The selected team also brought in to assist them three of Covington's best players. Nevertheless the juniors won the game in a score of three to two. The battery work of Griffin and Lawrence for the Juniors and of Thomas and Fowler for the College, was excellent all the way through. By innings the result was as follows: College 2, Juniors 3.

An Unknown Negro Killed. VILEA RICA, Ga., May 30.—[Special.]—An unknown negro was killed on the Georgia Pacific near the forty-one-mile tank this morning. The supposition is that he was stealing a ride to Atlanta, and while the train was standing still to take water, he went to sleep, and as it moved off, he lost his sitting and fell, and was run over and almost cut in two.

THE MEMORIAL ARCH EBECTED IN WASHINGTON SQUARE IN NEW YORK.

Great Crowds Witness the Cerem Hon. George William Curtis the Orator of the Day.

NEW YORK, May 30 .- In the presence of great concourse of people, the corner-stone of Washington Memorial Arch was laid with much pomp and eeremony by John W. Vrooman, grand master of Masons in the state of New York, at the site of the arch in Washington Square. Platforms were erected on the east side of the roadway, which the arch will span, one for the Masons and invited guests and the other for members of the oratorio, and other singing societies, led by Frank H. Damrosch. Among the prominent people present were, Mr. and Mrs. Grover Cleveland, ex-Secretary and Mrs. Fairchild, Daniel Huntington, president of the academy of design; ex-Mayor Cooper, and nearly all of the members of the arch committee. The exercises were opened with prayer by Bishop Potter. Then followed a hymn by Robert Underwood Johnson, sung by Damrosch's choir of two hundred voices Henry G. Marquand, chairman of the Washington memorial arch committee, deliv-

Henry G. Marquand, chairman of the Washington memorial arch committee, delivered the first address. Mr. Hutchins, president of the department of public parks, next-spoke in behalf of the city.

GEORGE WILLIAM CURTIS'S ORATION.
GEORGE WILLIAM CURTIS'S ORATION.
George William Curtis, the orator of the day, then stepped forward and delivered his address, which was loudly applauded. It was as follows:

This is a day of proud and tender memories. With malice toward none, with charity for all, it commemorates the triumph of American patriotism and the assured integrity of the American union. Its associations blend naturally with those of the revolution and of the inauguration of the national government. The garlanded graves of the boys in blue recall the memory of the old continentals. When a soldier of New England in the war for the union was marching through New York to the front and was asked from what place he came, still keeping step to the drum beat, he answered, "from Bunker Hill, from Bunker Hill." When Theodore Windarop fell we said, Joseph Warren dies again for his country. The march of Sherman to the sea achoes the tread of Ethan Allen marching to Ticonderoga and demanding its surrender, as Sherman would have demanded it, in the name of the great Jehovah and the continental congress. To hear Paul Jones on his shattered ship answering the British captain's summons to yield by shouting that he had not yet begun to fight, is to see our Farragut, in the flery storm of battle, lashed to the rigging of the Hartford—

"The sea-king of the sovereign west Who made his mast a throne."

our Farragut, in the fiery storm of battle, lashed the the rigging of the Hartford—

"The sea-king of the sovereign west Who made his mast a throne."

We cannot speak of Grant at Appomatox, but are remember the crowning mercy at Yorktown. We cannot mention Abraham Lincoln, but we think of George Washington.

What day in the year could be more fitting than the day consecrated by such memories on which to lay the corner-stone of a monument which shall recall alike the beginning of the union and the glery of its greatest citizen? Never before could this duty have been performed with greater joy and gratitude, because now the national union, the great result of the revolution and of the devotion of Washington, has been tried by fire, and its dross is burned sway. Where the flowers fall today upon the graves of the blue or the gray they fall on the dust of Americans. As nothing but American valor could have hoped successfully to assail the union, so nothing but American valor could have successfully maintained it. Thank God! whatever colors we may have worn in the past, today the sun shines upon a nation which is all true blue.

In beginning this memorial work if New York is the sun shines upon a nation which is all true blue.

In beginning this memorial work if New York is justly proud she does not forget that all the American cities of the revolution have their distinctive patriotic renown. In Boston was rocked the cradle of liberty. In Philadelphia independence was declared, and the constitution adopted. In Baltimore sat the continental congress when it was driven from Philadelphia, and in Charleston harbor the great fleet of Sir Peter Parker was dispersed and destroyed. But New York was the Boene of the last act of the revolution, and of the opening drama of constitutional union. In New York the flag of England was lowered. From these shores the proud sovereignty of Great Britain sailed away. Here the first congress of the United States assembled. Here the first president was inaugurated, and here the national government of the union began. From the day two hundred and eighty-one years ago, when Hendrick Hudson first saw the island on which the city stands, to the present hour, these closely related events are by far the greatest and most momentous in the anals of New York. Until now the part taken in them by the city has wanted a monument. Henceforth the monument that we raise will tell the glorious story.

In older lands monumental arches and columns of victory celebrate territorial conquest, personal anabition and the armed march of empire. But in this younger land of liberty and law, where the army is but a policeman and the navy a watchman of the coast, we build an arch of Peace, the symbol of the republic in which the guaranteed right of every citizen is the security of the commonwealth, and whose first chief magistrate is the perpetual illustration and inspiration of American citizenship. It is to him especially, the dominating figure of his time, the individual personal lorce that has so largely moulded our history.—him who refused the crown and made the constitution live and move, who found his country a cluster of dependent colonies and left it an independent ration.

tution live and move, who found his country a claster of dependent colonies and left it an independent nation, that this monument especially pendent nation, that this monument especially commemorates.

That in the perilous tumult of the time, the jealous clash of doubtful communities, and the hot conflict of selfish interests and passions, the constitution should have been harmoniously drawn and speacefully ratified, was in itself a miracle. Against probability, despite apprehension, beyond hope, so much was achieved. But still the great question remained. There was the potential nation, the aspirations of liberty, the hopes of humanity hidden within it. There lay the statue completely wrought. Should it lie there like those huge Egyptian columns that were quarried, but never raised? Who should touch it with the vital spark? Where was the personal power, so sovereign, so calm, so pure, so acknowledged, that like the blessed might which stilled the raging waters of the sea, it should pacify the weltering passions of a continent, and, raising the motionless form of the nation, send it alive, indomitable, resistless, upon its radiant and beneficent way?

We always gladly concede that Washington was raising the motionless form of the nation, send it alive, indomitable, resistless, upon its radiant and beneficent way?

We always gladly concede that Washington was good, but we are not always so sure that he was great. But a man's greatness is measured by his service to mankind. If without ambition and without a crime, righteously to lead a people to independence through a righteous war, then, without precedent and amid vast and incalculable hostile forces to organize their government, and establish in every department the fundamental principles of the policy which has resulted in marprinciples of the policy wishing the policy wishing the policy of the policy wishing the policy of the policy wishing the policy wishing to the policy wishing the policy wishing to the policy wishing the which pours beneath, what will it say to the endless procession of Washington's fellow-countrymen? What is the voice which, by erecting this monument two make our own? In his eulogy upon Washington, Governor Morris said that as the constitutional convention was about to organize, when success seened hopeless and despair suggested fatal compromise, Washington said: "If to please the people we offer what we ourselves disapprove, how can we afterward defend our work? Let us convention was about to organize, when success seemed hopeless and despair suggested fatal compromise, Washington said: "If to please the people we offer what we ourselves disapprove, how can we afterward defend our work? Let us raise a standard to which the wise and honest can repair—the event is in the hands of God." There spoke the good genins of America. If any words were to be inscribed upon this arch, these words of Washington would be apples of gold in pictures of sliver. What he said to the convention he says to us. It is the voice of the heroic spirit which in council and in the field has made, and alone will preserve our America. It is the voice that will speak from this memorial Arch to all coming generations of Americans. Whatever may betide, whatever war, foreign of domestic, may threaten, whatever specious sophistry may assail the political conscience of the country or bribery of place or money corrupt its political action, above the roar of the mob and insidious clamor of the demagogue, the voice of Washington will still be the voice of American patriotism and of manly honor—"Let us raise a standard to which the wise and honest can repair—the event is in the hands of God!"

The laying of the corner-stone, by John A: Vrooman, was the next event. After the formalities of the grand lodge had been gone through with, Mr. Vrooman made a speech, which told of Washington's connection with Masonry. He said the official record showed that the honored name of Washington appeared on the pages of the books of the Masonic fraternity as an ideal man and Mason. Washington was made a member of Fredericksburg lodge, No. 4, on the 4th of November, 1152, at the mature age of twenty-nine years, and while serving as an adjutant-general in the British army.

regalia of the grand lodge, then took the Bible on which the oath was administered to Washington as first president of the United States, and read from a page on which Washington is said to have put his hand while taking the oath of office.

said to have put his hand while taking the oath of office.

After singing of "The Star-Spangled Banner" and the hymn, "Praise to Thee, O God of Freedom," the ceremonies closed with the anthem "America," by the choir. The arch is the outgrowth of a suggestion of William Rhinelander Stewart, that the arch of wood erected at the time of the centennial organization of the federal government, May 30, 1889, be perpetuated in enduring marble. For this purpose a committee was selected with Henry G. Marquand as chairman, and it was decided to expend $100,000 in the project, to be raised by popular subscription. The arch will stand about 100 feet from the north carb of Washington Square park, and will arch the beautiful broad drive through the park.

THEY DIDN'T DECORATE.

Why Robert Anderson Post Were Not at Beaufort, S. C.

Beaufort, S. C.

CHARLESTON, S. C., May 30.—[Special.]—
The Robert Anderson post, G. A. R., did not take part in the Decoration Day services at Beaufort today.

This post is composed entirely of white men, republicans and democrats. The celebration at Beaufort was entirely by colored people and their white republican leaders. The occasion was honored, however, by a battalion of marines and sailors from the South Atlantic squadron, now at Port Royal. It had been the intention of the Robert Anderson post to go to Florence today and decorate the graves of the union soldiers in the National cemetery there, but the plan was abandoned at the last mo-

Florence today and decorate the graves of the union soldiers in the National cemetery there, but the plan was abandoned at the last moment for the reason that the necessary funds were not forthcoming. It seems that $1,500 was raised by the department to defray the expenses of colebrating Decoration Day in this state. The committee in charge of the fund, it is said, decided to devote the entire amount to the purchase of land at Andersonville to be used in laying out a park and grounds. The Robert Anderson post, which is the only white post in this state, had depended upon a portion of this fund to which they had contributed to have the celebration at Florence, and hence at the last moment were compelled to abandon the trip. Had they known what disposition was to be made of the fund the necessary amount could have been easily raised here, and the programme could have been arranged for decorating the graves of the union soldiers at Florence, but it was too late, and hence the scheme fell through. It is probable that on Decoration Day of 1891 the Robert Anderson post will arrange for a visit to Florence cemetery, and that they will be assisted and excorted by the confederate veterans and white military companies of Charleston.

Wife to Go Astray.

Columbia, S. C., May .30—[Special.]—A story of a murder and scandal has just come to light in Sumter county, and was made known to the sheriff and told his story as follows:

Last winter, Napoleon Wilson, a white man living at Magnolia, in Sumter county, succeeded in infatuating the wife of Morris, a neighbor, and the woman finally consented to abandon her home and run away with Wilson. They were absent for some weeks, but the abandon her home and run away with Wilson. They were absent for some weeks, but the happiness was not up to the standard of Mrs. Morris's expectations, and she returned to her husband and asked forgiveness. He received her back into his heart and home. Shortly afterwards, Wilson also returned to the neighborhood. He met Morris and they had a violent started of the quarrel. Since then they have carried on a continuous duel with pistols, firing whenever they got within range of each other. They were not good shots, however, and neither was injured until last Sunday, when Morris got a particularly fair opportunity and killed the seducer of his wife. Nothing was known of the matfer until yesterday, when Morris came from the interior to the county seat and surrendered.

Who Refuses to Eat—Says He Has a Call to Preach.

CHARLOTTE, N. C. May 30.—[Special.]—William McCullough, a blacksmith of this city, aged thirty-five years, is fast losing his mind, it is believed, on account of the preaching of that celebrated evangelist, Rev. Sam Jones. Some weeks age Mr. Jones held an eight days' meeting here, and McCullough attended every service, and would talk of nothing but Sam Jones. After the preacher went away, he still talked of nothing else, and a few days ago he threw down his hammer in his shop, and said the Lord had called him to preach. He tried in vain to secure the use of one of the city churches in which to preach, and then he declared if he was not allowed to preach he would not eat any food, and for four days he has kept good his pledge. He now sits on the streets, with a Bible in one hand and a Sam Jones's. Book of Sermons' in the other, and every poor-looking person passing by he offers money. McCullough is a married man and has two adopted children. He has saved some of his earnings, and is now giving everything he possesses to the poor.

afternoon. Warner was indicted the day after his arrest, and was tried today. The trial lasted all the afternoon, and all witnesses for the defense but one had been deputies started out of the court-room with the prisoner, each officer was seized by three men

the prisoner's neck, and he was dragged to the Work of an Incendiary.

Oxford, Ala., May 30.—[Special.]—Thursday morning at 3 o'clock, the residence of Mr. W. W. Whiteside, an attorney of this place, was discovered on fire. Fortunately, the flames were detected in time to be extinguished before much damage had been done. It was clearly the work of an incendiary. Balls of rags saturated with kerosene or turpentine were thrown under the kitchen floor, and the well rope severed in a number of and the well rope severed in a number of places. This is the second attempt within a few weeks to burn this residence. It is hoped the dastardly wretch who committed the fiendish deed will be caught and punished. Mr. Whiteside and wife were both absent at the time, the latter at the bedside of her dying mother. The house was occupied by two brothers and their sister, one a mere child, and the sister just recovering from a severe illness.

While Trying to Save the Life of Sleeping Child-Exciting Scenes During the Conflagration.

FORT WORTH, Texas, May 30.-Texas Spring Palace was burned to the ground at 10:30 tonight. One life was lost and five persons were injured. The loss is estimated at Russell B. Harrison, son of President Harrison, was one of the last to leave the burning building. He arrived here this morning in the private car of Frank Leslie's Weekly, which is making a tour of Texas. Tonight, in company with Mr. Palmer, manager of Leslie's western agency, and other members of the party, had visited Spring Palace. He had been asked to make an address, but had declined and went in formally and was not generally recognized until he had about completed the tour of the

RUSSELL HARRISON RECOGNIZED.

As he and John A. Sleicher, editor of Frank Leslie's Weekly, were about to leave the building, at about 9 o'clock, President Haddock, Vice-President Burbage and Editor Malone, of the Fort Worth Gazette, recognized Mr. Harrison, who was taken through the beautiful building and shown the exhibits until about 10 o'clock, when Mr. Burbage said that several of the Fort Worth ladies desired an introduc-

At this moment it was suggested that the remainder of the Leslie party be first intro-duced to the officers of the exhibition. Mr. Harrison and his friends moved toward the landing, and Mr. Sleicher, pointing out the highly inflammable character of the decoration, made up of cotton, live oak moss, grasses, etc., said: "A spark in such a building would lead to a frightful loss of life." Vice-President Burbage pointed out that the structure was lit by electricity; that no smoking was permitted and that guards with fire-extinguishers were stationed at frequent inter-THE BUILDING ON FIRE.

Hardly had he uttered the words before an agonizing cry was heard, mingled with shricks of hundreds of women on the upper floor. Mr. Sleicher turned to Mr. Harrison with a blanch ed face and said:

"It's fire! Save yourself!"
Mr. Burbage sprang up the stairs to save his wife, and a rush was made for doors and windows. "Stand still!" shouted Mr. Harrison. "Stay where you are, and pass out orderly!"

The stairway upon which he stood was instantly blocked by a surging mass of men and fainting women, through which Mr. Harrison tried to make his way to save a little child which he and others had noticed lying asleep behind the exhibit railing, in an obscure corner of the building.

It was impossible to make any headway, and the flames were already seen leaping from pil-lar to pillar, covering the ceiling with a sheet of fire, while a shower of sparks fell upon the unfortunate creatures struggling to find the narrow escape down the staircase.

MR. HARRISON PACIFYING THE PROPLE.

Mr. Harrison stood his ground, begging the terrified women not to move and helping to extricate them from the crowding mass until finally the stairway closed. He then made a final effort to mount the stairway and save th final effort to mount the stairway and save the child, but it was too late. The flames were burning the top rails and decorations. Mr. Harrison hurried from the building, first telling a frantic doorman to carry out a big second book, in which the names of visitors were recorded. By the time he reached the outside the roof of the palace was one great blaze.

Women were ruuning to and fro shricking for their husbands and children, and from the opposite windows of the fiery furnace forms of men and women clinging to windows and dropping twenty feet to the ground could be seen. Mr. Sleicher jumped from a window on the first floor, and he says there was no pres-

A MESSAGE TO THE PRESIDENT.

A message to the president was promptly forwarded, with the request that, if asleep, he should be awakened, so that no sensational stories should reach him first and shock him. The fire department was quickly on the ground, but the flames spread with such incredible speed that nothing could be done, except to save the adjoining property.

The Spring palace tonight was crowded with several thousand people, as the exhibition was to have closed on Sunday, and a grand ball was the closing event of tonight.

Ladies and gentlemen in full dress, and the best society of city and vicinity were on hand. One man is known to have been fatally hurred a Savars were seriously injured by burned. Several were seriously injured by being trampled on or scorched. It is impossible to know whether the loss of life is large or not. Many think that no one was burned. Others fear that at least twenty-five perished.

A Young Girl Sold in New York City for Six Hundred Dollars.

Six Hundred Dollers.

New York, May 27.—A strange story of violence and slavery in the very midet of this city came out at a hearing held in the Tombs police court today. A beautiful young Chinese maiden was the victim, and she has been locked up on the top floor of No. 11 Mottschret, in the heart of the Chinese quarter, and compelled to submit to indignities from Chinesmen. It further appears, in the story she told through an interpreter, that she was sold to her master, by her lover, for the sum of $600 The case was discovered by a reporter. Suemee is the pretty nineteen-year-old victim, and she is a native of Amoy, Chinas. She came to this country five years ago, four of which she spent in San Francisco. She was the hand-maid of a wealthy Chinese bride. One day she fell in love with Ah Poor, a Chinese gambler. The scandal drove her from her employer's home. She came to New York disguised as a boy and in Poor's company. Her gambler lover was unfortunate at gaming, and lost $18,000, and poverty drove him to sell his girl to Lee Khi. The girl was much frightened when brought face to face with Lee Khi in the court-room. Lee Khi was held in $2,500 bail for examination tomorrow.

A Newly Married Pair Startled by the Appearance of a Woman and a Baby.

COLUMBIA, S. C., May 30.—[Special.]—There is a sensation in Spartanburg and Glenn Springs, in this state, today. Glenn Springs is a watering place and summer resort of considerable importance, twelve miles from the city of Spartanburg. Last year a Mr. Williams, of New York city, visited the springs. He was reported to be wealthy, and lived up city of Spartanburg. Last year a Mr. Williams, of New York city, visited the springs. He was reported to be wealthy, and lived up to his reputation. He became engaged to Miss Florence Smith, an estimable young lady and a member of one of the very best families of Spartanburg. Miss Smith was summering at the springs. Mr. Williams returned to New York for the winter, but a month ago he put in an appearance at Glenn Springs, and last week was married to Miss Smith.

Yesterday a handsome woman, with an infant in her arms, arrived at Spartanburg from New York. She immediately drove out to the springs and appeared in the presence of Mr. Williams and his bride, announcing herself as the deserted wife of Mr. Williams. A stormy interview followed, and the young bride was almost prostrated. Mr. Williams denies all knowledge of the woman, and being unable to furnish proof of her marriage, she returned with her child to Spartanburg this morning. She will probably renew her attack in a day or two.

ATHENS AND PLEDGER.

Mr. Cooper Did Not Hear Pledger Use Incendiary Language.

Athens, Ga., May 30.—[Special.]—The Ledger publishes an interview with Mr. C. W. Cooper, in which he says that it was a mistake about Bill Pledger's uttering the incendiary threat ascribed to him, so far as he knew. Be that as it may, Pledger is not out of the "pot," at any rate. Jim Huggins, an irate negrowho lives here, denounces Pledger in strong language as having been too intimate with his (Huggins's) wife, and that he henceforth must shake the dust of the classic city from beneath his feet, as Athens is not large enough for them both. Huggins seems to mean business, and has sworn eternal vengeance against and has sworn eternal vengeance against Pledger. The feeling between the two is of an intense nature, and if they come together something lively will result.

Poisoned by the Dew.

Poisoned by the Dew.

RALEIGH, N. C., May 30.—[Special.]—One prisoner escaped from New Hanover workhouse today.

About ten or twelve years ago, Mr. Joshua Pittman, a farmer near Croaton, received a flesh wound while handling a basket of cotton and contracted dew poison in the injured place, which has troubled him at intervals ever since. It finally became so bad that five weeks ago he came to Newberne to receive medical attention, with the expectation of having the diseased limb amputated, but the state ing the diseased limb amputated, but the state of his health would not permit the operation to be performed. He grew worse until finally death terminated his suffering on Thursday evening last. Mr. Pittman was forty-three years of age.

The Liver

When out of order, involves every organ of the body. Remedies for some other derange-ment are frequently taken without the least effect, because it is the liver which is the real source of the trouble, and until that is set right there can be no health, strength, or comfort in any part of the system. Mercury, in some form, is a common specific for a slug-gish diver; but a far safer and more effective

The Elephant Fund. The youngsters of Atlanta are still at work for their elephant, and the fund continues

A very good showing will be made tomor row; but, in order not to "crowd the elephant," as the showman would remark, it is to be hoped that our young friends will bring in their contributions and their pictures as early during the day as possible.

This will give the artist more time to faithfully reproduce the portraits of the boys and girls who are working with such energy and perseverance for the elephant.

The children have this consolation, that when the great beast comes, as he surely will, he will be emphatically their elephant.

A Discordant Note.

It is reported that General Jubal Early made himself conspicuous by a display of bad temper at the Richmond celebration.

As the story goes, General Early was mistaken by a stranger for General Longstreet. He turned rudely upon the man, and damned Longstreet with a big, round oath. A retraction was demanded by a bystander, and friends interfered to keep the peace.

If the incident has been correctly reported, General Early never appeared in a worse light. General Longstreet was warmly welcomed at Richmond by the confederate veterans. It would have been in just as bad taste on such an occasion to insult him on account of his politics as it would have been to snub General Early on account of his connection with the Louisiana lottery.

But the report lacks confirmation, and it is to be hoped that it has no foundation.

Socialism Impracticable.

While the thinkers and statesmen of Engfand are gravely discussing socialism, it has been reserved for a mere boy to propound a question of startling significance.

Mr. Rudyard Kipling, the twenty-four old youngster whose short stories and poems are now all the rage, comes to the front in a magazine article, and asks what England, when she adopts socialism, will do with India.

That one question smashes British social-Ism. The extension of the new theory of society and government to 240,000,000 people of an inferior race would result in nothing less than anarchy, and the English would be driven out of India. Mr. Kipling Is a very young man, but he knows a thing or two. He does not believe in legislating upon the theory that all men are angels. He boldly says that England can only govern India by superior force and comprehenson of buman nature.

This view is of great interest to people on this side of the water, because, like the British, we have millions of people of an inferior race to govern. Possibly an enlightened socialism would be practicable for the better element of our population, but how would it work with our large per centage of the ignorant and vicious? How long ld it be before such a police sult in the complete paralysis of government and a state of anarchy? Lord Salisbury put it sensibly when he said that some features of socialism may be wisely adopted by a government, while it would be very unwise to adopt other features. Our republic cannot stand unless the people who have a vital interest in maintaining law and order continue to control legislation and the machinery of government. The experiment of socialism on a vast scale would plunge us into anarchy and internecine warfare.

Will Northern Business Men Stand It's

THE CONSTITUTION has already warned the business men and capitalists of the north that the profits of the large investments they have made in the various enterprises and industries of the south depend almost wholly on the character and extent of the political legislation of congress.

There are various measures now pending in that body which have for their purpose the control of the congressional elections in the south in the interest of the republican party. These measures are equally infamous in their purposes, and no matter which one becomes a law, a period of demoralization, disorganization and confusion is bound to The progress and development of the industrial resources of the south will be brought to a standstill. Those who are now engaged in furthering this progress and ment, will turn their attention from their business to the protection of their property and other interests against the political aggression of the republicans.

The pretense of those who are furthering this sectional legislation is that the negroe are deprived of the right to vote. Their purpose, however, is to count the negro as a republican voter whether he votes the reemblican voter whether in the modern so ggressively sectional and partisan as this cannot fail to have a tremendous effect in delaying progress and in destroying values at the south. For the final object of it all is to turn these states over to negro rule. The proposed legislation is a long step in direction. It is intended now to apply only to congressional elections. In whatever district the census may show a negro ajority in that district, under the propose republican candidate will be declared elected. And it is this result of blind partisarchip that will disorganize the business interests of the south.

This fact seems to be clearly understood by the business men of the south, and some of them have given their views in the mos did manner. The Charleston News and Courier prints extracts from letters written by some of the most prominent and successful rusiness men and manufacturers of South Carolina, and these gentlemen, with out exception, deprecate the proposed legislation and declare that its result will be to cripple and delay the industrial progress and development of the south. What Mr. H. P. Hammett says may stand for the views of all. He is the president of two manufacturing companies, and has made his in fluence felt in various enterprises. He

There never has been a period in the history of the southern states, before or since the war, when there was more peace and harmony and good feel-ing between the races than existed a year ago. The relationship existing between them in their The relationship existing between them in their several avocations was beginning to be just what every patriot and good citizen everywhere desired, and as a consequence there was a condition of prosperity dawning upon the state which had never before existed. Race prejudices were rapidly disappearing. Sectional feeling had practically already disappeared, and all that was necessary to perpetuate and perfect this most desirable condition of things was to be let alone by the federal government, and allow the states to work out their own destiny in their own way. But the agitation which has been kept up by repubthe agitation which has been kept up by republican politicians for the last year or two threatens to revive and aggravate the worst passions and feelings of the people of both races, and to allenate the sections and put back the material progress ate the sections and put back the material period. The of the southern states for a very long period. The kindly feeling between the sections which I have described had resulted in bringing large sums of northern capital into the southern states for profitable investment in every description of property.

This disposition amongst northern capitalists was largely on the increase, and promised won derful developments, and their attention was being more and more directed to the southern states as a field for profitable investment. Manu facturing industries of all kinds were springing up, most of which were in successful and profita-ble operation, and in most of them northern capital formed a very large portion of the capital stock. One of the two cotton mills of which I am the president, that of the Piedmont Manufactur-ing company, has a capital of $600,000, of which $138,000 of the stock is held in the northern states. The capital of Camperdown Cotton mills is $100,and I think the same, or a larger proportion of northern capital, will be found in every large cot-ton mill in this part of the state, and these investments do not apply to cotton mills alone, but to every other industry in this country. The stocks of all these mills bring a very high premium upon their par value in the market, and are eagely sought for as investments by capitalists. negroes should again get control of the state govrnment, in my judgment, there would be a sud-len and very large decline in the market value of these stocks; besides, the spirit of projecting and building other new mills, and other industries would be suddenly checked, if not altogether sus-pended. The career of extravagance, corruption and fraud (if nothing worse), which were practiced by the state government when it was under negro rule is yet too fresh in the memory of the people and they suffered too severely from their quences for them to put another dollar w could be reached or controlled by them.

More Misinformation.

The Boston Transcript suggests that General Lee ought to have fought for the union, and says:

There was a major of cavalry whom Lee knew, a Virginian, who did not hesitate, but who fought as valiantly for his country as Lee fought for his state. That officer was George H. Thomas, faith-ful among the faithless found, whose memory is precious to the veterans of the union; but whom Virginia refuses to honor. There was another man in Virginia who did not hesitate, an old naval officer, a man of sixty, who had buffeted the wind officer, a man of sixty, who had buffeted the wind and waves from boyhood. To leave Virginia was to wrench his heart strings, but he left it, and from that hour dates the glory of Farragut

If the Transcript desired to give a list of distinguished Virginians who remained in the federal military and naval service after their state seceded, why did it not mention Winfield Scott, who was in command of the union armies? Such an omission must have been caused by ignorance of the fact.

And why does the Boston paper try to make it appear that Farragut was a Virginian, when he was born in Tennessee? Again ignorance of the fact must be accepted as the explanation. If the Transcript will persist in dealing with southern affairs, it should add a south ern editor to its staff, or somebody who has casually glanced at the history of his country. Home Rule for Pennsylvania.

A few days ago we called attention to the revival of the state sovereignty idea in the Even such a conservative paper as the Philadelphia Telegraph turns its back on centralization when it gets excited over a burning issue. The Telegraph says, in very plain terms, that the people of the local option counties in Pennsylvania will not submit to the original package decision of the fed eral supreme court. Our contemporary says: 'Of course the people are not going to stand by and see outsiders trample on their rights and liberties. The time-honored privilege of regulating their own affairs to suit the needs and wishes of the community will not be surrendered without a struggle, just because the supreme court has delivered itself of an unreasonable and revolutionary interpretation of the constitution."

Now, just such talk as this, when it is acted upon, leads to nullification, secession or insurrection. Pennsylvania once rose in arms in a whisky insurrection. Will she now raise the banner of revolt in the interests of water? It looks like it.

Matters have come to a pretty pass when influential newspapers pronounce the action of the supreme court revolutionary, and suggest that certain communities will not obey the law without a struggle. But the fact will not be noted that this aggressive assertion of the home rule principle, the very essence of the state sovereignty doctrine, manifests itself in the north, and not in the south.

Republican Troubles.

Some of the republican organs are endeavoring to squeeze a drop or two of consolation out of the Alliance movement in the south by suggesting a possible division of the democratic party in some of the states of this section. Meanwhile, the political atmosphere of the west and northwest is full of sulphur, and if the republicans do not do better during the next few months than they have done in the past in the direction of fixing up their fences, they are likely to lose a great many more congressmen in the west than they will be able to gain in the south. even though they manage to give force and effect to their proposed sectional election

In Illinois there are inspiring symp a democratic revival. General John M. Palmer has taken the field as a candidate for senator, and although he has been a republican leader, his views on the tariff are such as to invite the support of the democrats There are evidences that the demand for tariff reform on the part of the people of Illinois will make that republican stronghold debatable ground. This situation, together with the restlessness displayed by the farmers of that state, will give the republicans a great deal more trouble than they have rained for.

In Nebraska the conditions are even worse for republican success than they are in III) nois. There is a well-defined split in the party. The anti-monopoly republicans have already held their convention and nominated their state ticket. In June the Farmers' alliance will hold a convention and nominate a state ticket, and so will the union labor party. Later on the democrats and the old-line republicans will nominate state tickets. What hope can the republican party of monopoly have of carrying Nebraska in the face of the wave of reform that seems to be sweeping over Nebraska?

In Wisconsin the republican party is in the midst of great tribulation. The Swedes and Norwegians are naturally republican, but they are bitterly opposed to tariff taxes, and the adoption of the McKinley bill, or any measure based thereon, will give the state to the democrats. Even now the antitax sentiment is stronger than party lines.

.The prospects of the republicans in Kansas are far from bright, though it was the banner republican state in 1888. The party there is divided into two factions, each thor oughly organized, with state committees, and the certainty of rival republican state tickets. Then there is the Farmers' alliance, which is almost strong enough to defeat both parties. The alliance is making a fight against monopoly taxes, and it undoubtedly means business.

This is the situation in some of the states at this time, and it is very promising.

Rather Mixed.

Mr. Fied Mussey, the special correspond ent of the Cincinnati Commercial Gazette writes to his paper from Richmond that the twenty-five thousand confederate flags with which the city is decorated for the Lee monument celebration are of northern manufacture.

It is a queer piece of business. While the writers and speakers of Massachusetts, Connecticut and Ohio were denouncing the Richmond people for displaying these flags, the business men of those states were doing their level best to secure contracts for manufacturing the conquered banner bunting.

All this would seem to show an absence of sectional feeling on both sides. If there was any bitterness in it, the people of Richmond would not send north for confederate decorations, and northern manufacturers would not be willing to furnish them.

The fact is, with the exception of a few politicians, nobody is raising a racket over the confederate flags. Even Mr. Fred Mussey, who is a stalwart republican, will be very likely to repeat in Richmond his Atlanta performance, and parade the streets with a miniature copy of the stars and bars stuck in his hat. Mr. Mussey is sharp enough to know that a rebel banner made by republican yankees is a very innocent affair, and suggests a re-united country more than anything else.

MR. WILLIAM McKINLEY'S tariff bill, which s moistened by the sweat of his ample brow, and which occasioned so much wear and tear on his conscience, has been practically laid on the shelf in the senate. State Sovereignty Up North.

From the New York Tribune.
The old doctrine of state sovereignty did not die at Appointation.—ATLANTA CONSTITUTION. Who says it did? The Calhoun-Davis idea of state sovereignty-that is, of an inherent right in ime the office of the federal supreme court and to nullify federal laws at will— that did die at Appomattox and was buried under the bones of a million soldiers. But the old docthe bones of a million soldiers. But the old doc-trine did not die. It lives, and will live, we hope, forever. The rights of the states within the sphere of action retained by them when the government of the union was established are as necessary to the peace, liberty and prosperity of the individual citizen as are the rights of the federal authority at Washington within the sphere outlined for its work. The relations of the states to one another and to the union were, indeed, af fected by the results at Appoination, but only in certain particulars, and not in the original theory of them. does me great injustice.

Please, therefore, permit me a few words. This is a delicate question, and I regret to have to say anything. The northern teachers who have come among us have, upon the whole, done a great and good work. I have received many blessings from their hands. Many of them have come as strong friends to the colored man, and at the same time with good feelings for the southern people and the welfare of the south generally. Most of them are devoted Christians. Occasionally we have one of the other stripe.

God forbid that I should ever say a word or do an act that would impede the good work of these teachers. Nay, rather they shall have my support in all good work.

But today's article does me injustice. Mr. Smith had nothing to do with the editorial on Jefferson Davis from first to last. I wrote the editorial, which was a simple narration of the principal events of his life. President Hickman and Professor E. A. Berry said, in the presence of a dozen persons, that everything in the editorial was true, but that it was not wise to publish it. I yielded without a murmur, but resigned the editorship of the college paper. Thus the matter ended, satisfactorily to all, as I supposed. The matter has given me no concern since until today. But since President Hickman is made to appear as the defender of Mr. Davis against what he thought to be too severe strictures in the editorial, it is in place for me to say that he has made severer remarks about him in public speech than ever I thought of. In a speech at Gammon Theological seminary, he said: "The southern people should come out and see what we are doing. But they are hard-headed like Jeff. I don't see why God lets him live so long."

Our Poetle Chief Justice.

From the Savannah Times.

Judge Blanford and Judge Simmons, of Geor-Judge Blanford and Judge Simmons, of Georgia's supreme court, spent three happy days at Tybee this week. Chief Justice Logan E. Beckley had tasted of our hospitality, and of our epicurean life, and it was a sore trial of the flesh to remain behind. But with a noble unselfishness, which is more worthy of esteem than the glitter of crowns, or stars, or garters, he offered himself a vicarious sacrifice, and stayed at home to labor over the dry and tedious briefs of plaintifs in certiorari, while his learned associates sought recreation where the salty sea breezes refrush, and the ruddy shrimp, the creamy fish chowder and the deviled crab are the answer to the pious supplicant's nightly prayer for daily food.

and the deviled crab are the answer to the pions supplicant's nightly prayer for daily food.

Justices Blanford and Simmons were looked after while on the coast by the Hon. William Clifton, whose name is a synonym of joility and good living. He feted the distinguished visitors with every vegetable, mollusk and crustacean delicacy that is in season. He discovered that the bench has one weakness in common, that each of the three members has a strong passion for the little cucumber of emerald hue, and his parting gift was three dozen of the cucumis sativus. One dozen was for Justice Simmons, one for Justice Blanford and the other dozen was to be presented to Chief Justice Bleckley, who once endorsed the sentiment that he would rather be a fiddler on the seacoast of Georgia than a harpist in the kingdom of heaven. This morning the representative from Chatham received the chief justice's hearty acknowledgment of the remembrance in these chaste, appreciative and glowingly poetic lines;

To CLINTON, OF SAVANNAH.

This morning, soon after I finished my slumbers.
Judge Simmons appeared with a dozen cucumbers!
My feelings towards you were never so tender
As when he informed me that you were the sender.

In this world, dear Clifton, of bitter and bleakness, 'Tis good to have friends who discern our weakness, And you are the foremost of all I can number Who know my weak side is toward the cucumber.

No language suffices in force or refinement
Tothank you enough for the precious consignments
I only am able, with the warmth of a brother.
To say you are welcome to zend me another.

ALUMNÆ BANQUET.

A BRILLIANT ASSEMBLAGE AT THE GIRLS' HIGH SCHOOL. The Annual Reunion of the Alumnae Society—A Scheme to Form an Alumni Society of Graduates. A half thousand people crowded Browning hall, at the Girls' High school, last evening.

It was the assembled alumnæ of the Girls'

High school and their friend-guests.

Such a gathering was never before seen in Atlanta—the proud young womanhood and sterling young manhood of Georgia's chief city-met together to renew their school-day friendship.

Life is all the brighter, and the coming generation all the better, for such ties. In their perpetuation and strengthening by such reas as that of last evening, much good, much happiness lies.

Sweet are the memories of school days, happy the associations they bring. THE ALUMNAE SOCIETY.

THE ALUMNAE SOCIETY.

It has been customary, since the foundation of the Girls' High school, for an annual meeting of the alumnae to be held during the latter part of May.

Last year no general meeting was held.

Two years ago the meeting was highly interesting.

This year new life was infused into the nociety, and it was determined that a banquet should be given, in order that the association might be put on a more flourishing footing. Neat invitations were gotten up and sent out to all graduates of the high school whose addresses could be obtained.

A splendid programme of entertainment was arranged and elaborate preparations for a grand reunion made.

In respense to the invitations Browning hall was filled to the door with alumnæ and their invited friends when the society was called to invited friends when the society was called to order last evening.

By way of salutatory the invitations say, in the words of Miss Orelia Key Bell:
To them who live in the Eternal Now
There is no when. Salute ye, sisters, all!
Once more we assemble in our Browning hall
With consecrated step and reverend brow—
To mortal sense; our spirits ever flow
Together here in harmony; our temporal
And visible forms, loyal to duty's call,
Marshal to trip the light fantastic toe
About the festive board—just once a year.
When last we met, 'twas but a flow of reason;
Tonight we offer you unusual cheer onight we offer you unusual cheer— cup for Auld Lang Syne! Our annual dues so promptly paid, assist our trembling muse. Long may the necessary funds be raised in season A BRILLIANT GATHERING.

The beautiful hall was decorated handsom ly for the occasion.

Potted plants and fragrant flowers were placed round the stage in profusion, and the inspiring strains from Wurm's band, with the loveliness of the costumes and the beauty of the alumna made a truly brilliant scene.

In the audience were a number of prominent pitizens and members of the board of education, hearited greats of the alumna.

ritizens and members of the board of education, Invited guests of the alumna. On the stage were the officers of the society and others who were to take part in the preliminary literary entertainment. The officers of the society are Joseph Moody, president; Mrs. C. L. Floyd, vice-president; Mrs. Hudgins, secretary; (in Mrs. Hudgins's absence, Mrs. Nettle Sargeant acted as secretary), Miss Mary Ella Reid, treasurer; Mrs. W. L. Leyden, historian; Miss Lizzie Fry, corresponding secretary.

Mr. J. Carroll Payne, orator of the evening, and Mr. R. J. Lowry also occupied seats on the stage.

THE EXERCISES.

Mrs. Hannah Sheehan Moody, president of the alumnae, opened the evening's entertainment by a timely address, touching the organization, its objects, and its necessities.

Mrs. Moody urged that the association be made to embrace the alumni of the Boys' High school, the two forming one general organization for the benefit and enjoyment of the graduates of both schools.

This feature met with general approval, and the formation of such a society will be begun without delay.

After Mrs. Moody's address Miss Sargeant

After Mrs. Moody's address Miss Sargeant read the secretary's report. The historians report showed that since the last meeting forty-one members of the society had married, and fourteen had died. A touching tribute was paid to the departed alunnal and to Hon. David Mayer, the respected and beloved member of the board of education, whose death has been so recently mourned.

ber of the board of education, whose death has been so recently mourned.

Miss Mary Ella Reid's report was not ex-tended, owing to the abbreviated condition of the treasury, of which she holds the key.

When the reports were rendered, the following was the programme:

2. Song, "Welcome"—Mrs. Myra Sharp Scott and Miss Mollie Courtney.

3. Music, "Dance Caprice"—Miss Jessie Muse,
4. Song, "The Spider and the Fly"—Miss Ers-kne Richmond.

5. Recitation, "Gipsy Flower Girl"—Miss Eula Ketner.

At the close of Mr. Payne's address, Mrs.

the banquet spread on the floor below.

Tables were spread in the rooms and corridors of the second floor. There the guests proceeded to the music of a march by Wurm's band.

The menu was: Beat Biscuit. Sandwiches. Ice Cream. Cake.

While the refrehments were being served the chairs in Browning hall were removed and as the young people rose from the banquet tables on the floor below they returned to the hall where dancing was indulged in until midnight.

The dancing was confined to the alumnae and their guests, the young ladies of the high school being refused participation by Miss Sargeant, the principal.

Wednesday, at the residence of the bride's parents in Warsaw, Ga., Miss Clara Abbott was united in marriage to Mr. P. N. Parker. The at-tendants were Miss Bab Graham and Mr. J. G. G. Parker, Miss Lizzie Parker and Mr. Calvin Par-Sons. The ceremony was performed by Rev. G.
W. Yarborough, of Oxford, Ga., only a few relatives and friends being present. A reception was tendered the young couple and their friends immediately after the ceremony.

The bride is a daughter of Captain A. T. Abbott, one of the leading farmers and merchants of Milton county, and the groom is one of the popu-lar and promising young business men of Gaines-ville, where their future home will be.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Faber gave an entertainment last night in honor of Miss Lillie Burton, of Norfolk, sister of Mrs. Faber, who is visiting in the city. The parlors and dining-room were beautifully decorated with flowers. An olegant supper was served, and a terwards Mr. Faber took a "lash-light" photograph of the assembled guests.

THE CITY IN BRIEF.

THE NEWS OF THE DAY IN CON-DENSED FORM.

An Enjoyable Trip.-Professor J. D. Caldon has an Engloyance Trip.—rrotesor of D. Cardon has just returned from an extended trip to Cincinnati and other points west. During his stay Professor Caldon met with many old friends, and made a host of new ones. But he said last night: "I wouldn't give one county in Georgia, to live in. for the whole state of Ohio. I am glad to get home again."

Mr. Hoppie's Invention .- Mr. George E. Hoppie, of Atlanta, has just returned from a trip taken through the north and east in the interest of his patent, a device to prevent the raising of bank checks. Mr. Hoppie meets with the most flattering encouragement. His patent has been taken by many of the government offices and by several banks in New York.

A Distinguished Journalist .- Colonel W. A Taylor, of the Cincinnati Enquirer, the nestor of Ohio journalism, and one of the best known news-paper men in the country, is in the city. Colonel Taylor is clerk of the Ohio senate, and during the stormy scenes of the last session he was the prin-cipal factor in bringing about democratic victory. Colonel Taylor is making a tour of the south for the Enquirer. He is accompanied by Mr. Jackson, of the Enquirer business staff.

Mr. William St. John.—This gentleman, the general agent of the Pintsch Gas Lighting depart-ment of the Safety Car Heating and Lighting department, New York, has just completed an important work in Atlanta, making many friends in the meanwhile, and leaves for New York today to attend to some business matters and to be with his family and friends at home on the twenty-first anniversary of his wedding.

Mr. St. John has contracted for the construc-tion of works near the East Tennessee freight depot to manufacture the Pintsch Gas Lighting apparatus and the gas for it. His company will spend over $20,000 in a plant and will be able to equip 1,000 cars a day, each carrying gas enough for twenty-four hours continuous burning.

Will Dedicate the Church.-Rev. W. P. Harrison, D.D., will dedicate the Asbury church to-morrow at 11 a. m. This divine, of national fame, will be a welcome guest in Atlanta. He served the First Methodist church as pastor for ten years, during which period thousands of members passed through the church and out to form the many suburban churches that were organized in the city during his labors. Dr. Harrison is one of the most learned men in the south, and has probably more warm friends in Atlanta than any other pastor who has ever served here. Rev. W. P. Smith, the pastor of Asbury church, by constant effort has collected money and paid about all the debt that was on this new church, and is happy injecturing the services of so popular a man as Dr. Harrison to dedicate it for him. The church is situated on the corner of Davis and Foundry. A large congrega-tion will doubtless gather to hear Dr. Harrison

A Pryor Street Sale.—Samuel W. Goode & Co. yesterday morning sold the old Air-Line house on Pryor street at auction. The property adjoins police headquarters, fronting Pryor street fifty feet, and having a depth of 125 feet. Mr. G. B. Everett, the broker, was the purchaser. His bud was $47,6%, or $941 a front foot.

#The property belonged to a syndicate. It was bought about three weeks ap by this syndicate for $43,0%. Five thousand dollars in three weeks is pretty good jump in value even for Atlanta property.

Found Floating in the River. NASHVILLE, Tenn., May 30.—[Special.]—Late this afternoon a fisherman found a floating box several miles down the river. Towing it to the bank he broke it open and found inside the remains of Joseph Ewling, the murdered negro boy, wrapped in paper. The disappearance of the body from the Potter's field, and the discovery of the clothes in a medical college, created much excitement among the negroes early in the week.

DECORATION DAY.

EXERCISES YESTERDAY IN THE NA-TIONAL CEMETERY AT MARIETTA.

Rev. Dr. Sherrell, of Atlanta, Delivers the Address—Exercises in the Afternoon by the Colored People.

The national cemetery at Marietta never presented so beautiful an appearance as yes-terday.

re are 1,060 graves in the twenty-two acres of ground, and on every one of them wa a flower. On perhaps two-thirds of them, in addition, were the national colors in minfature, the whole presenting, with the plain white monuments and green grass and the foliage at its best, a scene to be remembered.

The bodies are gathered from Resaca to Jonesboro, but the private and the chief are lying now side by side, and no distinction was made yesterday. The exercises were under the general direction of the O. M. Mitchell post, of Atlanta, assisted by the Ladies' Relief association. Their train left Atlanta at So'clock, in two ections, and other parties went up on later trains.

It was about 10 o'clock when the line formed at the depot in Marietta, headed by the garrison band from Fort McPherson. Nearly 100 comrades of the post were in line, most of them accompanied by their families. The la-dies of the Relief association were provided with carriages. In all these were not less than 500 or 600 in line.

There were thirty-six large baskets of flow ers, besides the bouquets and flags.

As the procession entered the cemetery, passing under the stone-arch gateway, the band played the "Dead March in Saul."

Arriving at the grand-stand, after music by the band, the regular order of exercises was taken up. The stand is a permanent structure about the center, and at the highest point in the grounds, overlooking the cemetery. Upon the platform were seated the ladies of the associ-

After this a trio of ladies sang "Cove

Commander Swartz then introduced the orator of the day, Rev. J. W. Sherrell, of the Church of the Redeemer.

It was happily timed, delivered in the speaker's best vein, and was in every respect worthy of the occasion. It was well received, being time and again interrupted by applause. "America," two verses, was sung next, to

BURSTING CLOUDS OF FIRE.

Wonderful Visitations Terrifying Natives o

Hong Kong, May 1, (via San Francisco), May 24.—Certain atmospheric phenomena which have continued since last year are causing much uneasiness among the Chinese in Soochow. The phenomena appeared first over rivers and creeks in the form of a black cloud which bears some resemblance to a boat, which gradually becomes a ball of fire and after a time bursts into a myriad of starry flashes of light that float about in the air for a while, to the great terror of the beholders.

the great terror of the beholders.

The more ignorant of the Chinese, attribute these visitations to the magic arts of the foreigners, and, fearing that they are the heralds of coming calamities, resort to heathenish rites and incantations, the beating of drums and the letting off of fire crackers, in order to drive them away. Some scientists will go to investigate.

There was a panic among the natives who live near the city wall in the French concession the other day. The people in a boat heard a great rushing of waters. Hurrying on deck they witnessed an appalling sight. The tide was rushing in in a seething state, and from the boiling waters issued sparks of fire, while a sickening odor filled the air. The visitation lasted for over an bour and created the wildest lasted for over an bour and created the wildest excitement.

The island of Miygejima was visited by a terrible succession of earthquakes, and houses tumbled down. There were heavy landslides and great fissures opened. Only the barest news has been received. A passing ship captain said the inhabitants of Idsen and Iyaga were camping out in the fields and praying at the aveynes and temples in a distracted manner: The centre of disturbance is a mountain called Oyaga, where an eruption has probably taken place.

Oxford Pushing Forward.

Oxford, Ala., May 30.—[Special.]—On town will soon beam with electric radlence and enjoy the additional luxury of a first-class system of waterworks. We have numberless exhaustless wells, huge public cisterns, a splendidly equipped dummy line, the daintiest resort in the state, and incomparable natural resources, two magnificent trunk lines of railroads, and a freight schedule identical with that of Birmingham, Anniston and Atlanta. With a trifle of the energy and enterprise exerted by other less favored towns, Oxford would outstrip them all.

The "Echo," a sprightly little weekly strikes boldly for progress and pleads earnestly for a spirit of liberality that will enable it to do more for the town, but its valiant appeals seem to fall on stolid ears. Its persistency has done much good, however, and it continues in the face of stubborn indifference to hammer away. Oh, for an end to our Rip Van Winkle sleep! Oxford Pushing Forward.

The United States will spend more money next year for pensions than it will cost to maintain the German army. FRIGHTFUL FATE Of Frank L. James, the African Traveler

New York Special. New York Special.

The Tribune of tomorrow will publish an interesting article relative to the death of Frank L. James, a well known African traveler and author, and a half brother of D. Africa, on April 21, by a wounded elephant. The first news of the accident reached this country on April 23, in a cable dispatch to D. Willis James, who received it during the wedding festivities of his son at Northampton. The full details were not received until yesterday, when a dispatch was received from Arthur James, who was in this country to attend his nephew's wedding, but had hurried back to England to receive his brother's body. The dispatch says that Mr. James' body was pierced in front by the tusk of the enraged elephant. The wounded man knew that he was dying, but the shock to his system prevented him from feeling any pain and almost dulled his senses. He lived only forty minutes after receiving the fatal wound, and the last words upon his lips were for his youngest brother, William, to whom he was devotedly attached. Only one member of his party was with him at the time of the accident, which happened about five miles from his yacht at 4:34 p. m., and by a strange fatality, on his birthday. The body was placed on his yacht, which reached Southampton, on Saturday night.

night.
Mr. James started from a town in Portugal about the end of January in his own yacht, the Lancashire Witch, which is an exact counterpart of Lord Brassey's Sunbeam, for a trip to Africa and South America, intending to get back to London about the first of July. He had with him several old companions of his

Every-Day Feats in America Considered Phenomenal in England. Phenomenal in England.

The English newspapers are discussing with gravity the feat of a reporter for the London Times who turned out on the typewriter in two hours 6,000 words of "copy," says the London correspondent of the Cincinnati Gazette. It is held up as a rare journalistic feat, and the English press is making much of it.

Here in Cincinnati it has been frequently done, and it was thought so much a matter of course that it received no mention in the press. There are reporters on the staff of the Commercial Gazette who have frequently done that which the London papers describe as a "feat."

He said that the Northern Pacfic and the adjacent continents have been for some weeks passing through a violent volcanic period. Scientists have examined the gasses which escape from craters, and found them to consist of carbon and its compounds, which are heavier than common air, and will, of course, like water, settle over the lowest levels as over rivers and in valleys. These gasses, it is found, are highly charged with electricity, and at night become more or less luminous. Like the pillar which led the children of Israel, during times of great planetary pressure these gasses are forced even up from the bed of the sea and frighten the sailor in midocean. The planet Venus, which caused the recent earthquake in the Northern Pacific, and which was felt in California and Queen Charlotte Island, is producing the above phenomena in China. On being asked what caused the earthquake in the western states a few days ago, he said it was the California earthquake traveling eastward and reappearing with the moon's conjunction. quake traveling eastward as with the moon's conjunction.

A Review of the Most Beautiful Seen in

From the Courier-Journal. NEW YORK, May 18 .- Mrs. Ella Dietz Clymer owes much of her reputation as the "beautiful" president of Sorosis to her use of her arms. She never forces them. If she disposes herself statuesquely against the light back of her carved chair she is content with so much of picturesqueness as is compatible with the calm poise of a good presiding officer. If occasion arises for her to throw an active expression into her posture she gets just the per-missible effect no more, no less, out of her graceful arms. But no woman of the stage has the actress's opportunity.

Lillian Russell has splendid, ripe, full-colored arms; a little heavy, perhaps, and suggesting the Turkish bath rather than the sunshine, but strong throughout and firm; such arms as speak of the fullness of recognition before the Miss Mather's arm was always too long. Miss Marlowe's is exquisitely proportioned and clearly, daintily modeled. It is a Diana arm, or rather that of one of Diana's nympths more youthful than the huntress. It has about it no mark of passion.

Mrs. Kendal's arm when she is on the stage is like her face as one sees it off the stage, serenely and healthfully matronly. Her upper arm is peculiarly muscular. Her skin has a creamy tint and the elbow is irreproachable. Carmencita could not have become the rage she is but for her soft, olive tinted, expressive arms, that dance quite as much as her feet, but are even more graceful as they lie heavily on her knees after the impassioned performance than during their music-quickened life as they wave and circle above her piquant, dark-eyed face.

Lili Lehmann has extremely handsome arms. A sculptor might model them. You never appraise their leavent when he is on the stage.

Lili Lehmann has extremely handsome arms. A sculptor might model them. You never appreciate their beauty when she is on the stage because your attention is distracted by her orange-colored wig and the yards on yards of cashmere with which she curiously disfigures the goddesses of Walhalla. If she would only give them half a chance, her arms are splendidly warm-skinned, majestically strong—the very arms of Brunhilde or Isolde.

Of society belles, Mabel Wright, now Mrs. Yznaga, had perhaps the widest spread reputation for arms.

Miss Elizabeth Bisland has the prettiest arms of any writing woman, with a young and virginal delicacy of rounding.

The prettiest wrist I ever saw belonged to a mite of a school teacher less than five feet high, who was built hand and foot like ar intaglio Venus. The commonest fault of a woman's arm is too large an elbow; there is petulance and not strength in such an articulation. Everybody remembers the struggle of Mrs. James Brown Potter's teachers with her irrepressibles.

Big and Puny Men.

It is becoming clear, from data collected by physicians, and governments, that environnent, nutrition, and climatic surroundings have remarkable influence upon physical development.

A writer to one of the English reviews shows from the army reports that the size of recruits to the English army is constantly diminishing. There was a time when the sol-diers in the English army were over the average of their countrymen, but either in the last generation the size of the English people must have deteriorated, or the men who now enlist are under the average, for quite half of the recent recruits are less than five feet six inches in height, and have a very much smaller measurement around the chest than the measurement of those entering the service twenty, thirty or forty years ago.

The authority from whom we are quoting, furthermore, asserts that the recruits coming from the country districts are, on the average, several inches taller, and a good many pounds heavier, than the men living in the cities, and that certain trades, notably tailors and bakers, have a tandancy to produce an undersize class. that certain trades, notably tailors and bakers, have a tendency to produce an undersize class of men. In France the members of the upper social class appear to be giants when compared with the lower classes.

The overwork so common among the masses in cities, and their wretched living, is creating terrible mental and physical deterioration. How to arrest this, is one of the greatest of social problems; and, its answer means the betterment of toilers.

SUICIDE AND QUININE. A Specialist Traces Self-Destruction to Reck less Use of the Drug.

Dr. William B. Clarke, of Indianapolis, Ind., well known as an an alienist and authority on all matters relative to insanity, recently prepared a paper which he entitled "A Study of Suicide," says the Kansas City Globe. One paragraph in the article cannot fail to be of general interest. It is this: "I feel confident that a frequent cause of suicide has been generally, if not entirely, overlooked, and so am impelled to utter a word of warning re-garding it, viz.: the reckless use of quinine, especially its use unauthorized by a physician.

"Any one who knows the pathogenetic ability of quinine, or rather its ability to cause symptoms or perturbations in the well or nearly well person, especially brain and nerve symptoms, cannot deny that it possesses the power to produce a condition nearly allied to insanity, if, indeed, it practically falls at all short of insanity. "In large doses it is a depressent, instead of a stimulant, contrary to the popular belief, and it is the most popular and universal every day amateur remedy. Everybody seems to take it, and for any and every ailment.

"It is reasonably easy of proof that many insanities, suicides and murders can be traced directly to the ill-advised and inordinate use of

AND EACH HAS SOMETHING OF IN-

The Race in the Eighth-Congressional Candidates in Plenty-A Big Meeting To-day-Talks With Leaders.

Governor Gordon goes on to New York from Richmond to meet several gentlemen who have been in communication with him concerning the lease of the Western and Atlantic

He will be there for several days, devoting his time to placing the matter to its best advantages in the market.

The visit cannot fail to be productive of good. The conviction is growing that there will be more than one bid for the road—that the Terminal company and the Louisville and Nash-ville will put in separate bids, and that there may be others.

The governor's visit is, in itself, a reassur-ing evidence of the interest taken in financial circles in New York.

There are now 1,458 militia districts in the state of Georgia. The newest one, in the piney woods of Liberty county, was given a number and a place in the executive records yesterday.

The numbering of these districts has been a sort of record of the growth of the state, and this light has a historical interest. The first militia district is in Chatham county, where Oglethorpe first landed. The next numbers, after the first four or five in Chatham, are in Effingham, where the next settlements were made, and so on.

Who is "Martha A. Theus"?

The question has been asked before, but not answered. In the executive department is quite a large, old-fashioned Bible, bound in black leather, profusely illustrated.

On this Bible the governors of Georgia for the past twenty years have taken the oath of The only mark about the Bible, inside or out, is that name printed in gilt type upon Nobody about the executive office can give any information, except that it has been in the capitol for so long and was used for that pur-Adjutant-General Kell and the other members of the governor's staff are expected back

If all that convicts say is true, there is plenty of verification, in the penitentiary offices at the capitol, of the old saying that

"truth is stranger than fletion." They tell strange stories.

The pathetic chords are wrung with an in genuity that makes each tale of woe a really novel and remarkable narrative. For example: A man named Charles A.

Read, convicted in Pike county of stealing a horse and buggy and sentenced to eight years in the penitentiary, says his conviction was due to the fact that he was born and brought up in New York city. It's tough on the metropolis, but that's what he says. He goes on to tell how he was traveling on a train, and got off at a station to buy something to eat. While he was in a store the postmaster stepped up and identified him as the man wanted near there for larceny. A description of the man wanted was produced, "and to my utter surprise," says the unfortunate man, "my appearance corresponded to it in the minutest particulars.

I was dumfounded and amazed." He was still expostulating and explaining when his train rolled out, leaving him, a helpless and unarmed northern man, in the hands of the notives The gist of the narrative then is that he was carried before twelve other natives, convicted vi et armis, and thrust into the penitentiary.

"Let me tell you one thing-Colley is in the tead; that is certain."

Colonel Ed Shubrick, assistant principal keeper of the penitentiary, is just back from Hancock county, and he talks enthusiastically of Colonel Colley's chances in that county.

Some of the reports of the joint discussion last Wednesday do not do Frank Colley jus-tice," he continued. "I was on the ground, and not only did Colley get decidedly the bet-ter of the discussion, but he had the crowd with him. Leading politicians of Hancock told me that in that crowd the Colley men were two to one, and the applause certainly seemed to indicate the truth of that estimate.' "How about the result in Hancock?"

"It will be close-there is no doubt of that. But to have it close is a victory for Colley. It was just a month ago that the Lawson men of Hancock told me that Colley had no earthly show there. Hancock joins Putnam, and the Lawson men have heretofore felt confident of carrying the county with ease. They now say that they hope to carry it by the hardest kind "Who will represent the eighth in the next congress?"

"In my opinion, Colley has the inside

Over in Goshen, today, there will be a great barbecue and alliance meeting, and eighth district candidates will be there in force.

Interesting rumors of new candidates come in this connection. One of them that Colonel Larry Gantt, of the Athens Banner, will formally announce his candidacy; the other—and it is vouched for by prominent alliance officials—that Colonel Olive has determined to run and may make his announcement at the same time.

Judge Jim Brown, long and lank as to physique, and Hon. Carter Tate, who is directly the opposite, held a love-feast in the Kimball corridors last night. The judge and the handsome gen-tleman from Pickens are making it lively for each other up in the ninth, but yesterday they were in loving embrace, "discussing," somebody suggested, "Thad Pickett's chances ap in the ninth."

"We're looking for congressional candidates, and this looks like one," was the remark with which Hon. Felix Corput was greeted as two friends approached him last

The colonel smiled and began to discuss the merits of the sub-treasury bill. If there is in Georgia any man more enthusiastic upon this important measure, he hasn't been heard. But he doesn't talk much about the consional race in the seventh.

"I am not in the race," he said, "and don't know that I will be; yet there's no telling what time may bring forth."

All of which may be construed just as you

In conversation Judge Stewart said that his visit here had no political cance whatever. A SCARED MULE. A Performing Bear Causes a Sensation on Greens Ferry Street.

There was a sensation on Greens Ferry street yesterday.

The two principal actors in the catastrophe

The two principal actors in the catastrophe were an old bear and an antiquated mule.

A man had a trick bear doing the grand act in the street, and his performances were loudly applauded by a crowd of people who had gathered to witness the show.

Mr. Willis Aughtman, with his wife, daughter and daughter's baby, drove up near the scene in a single wagon drawn by a mule. The mule was not accustomed to bears, and he became frightened at the grotesque performances of the animal, and ran away.

Mr. Aughtman was run over and pretty badly hurt. The ladies and the baby were thrown out of the wagon and more or less in-It was very fortunate that nobody was very badly hurt, and the party, who are country people, continued their journey homeward after the exciting little escapade.

SIGNS OF PROSPERITY.

Farmers of Spalding Increasing Their Tax

Returns.

GRIFFIN, Ga., May 27.—[Special.]—Twenty-three farmers, in Spalding county, increased their taxable property from 1884 to 1889 $49,699. During the same length of time two farmers' property decreased in valuation to the amount of $317. In order to ascertain whether or not the farmers of this section had increased or decreased their possessions in the past five years, as The Constitutions suggested, your reporter, at random, selected twenty-five names of men, known to have done nothing but farm, and compared their tax returns of 1884 with the amount given in by them in 1889.

The comparison was very gratifying. Returns.

1884 with the amount given in by them in 1889. The comparison was very gratifying. Twenty-three of the twenty-five returned as taxes in 1884, $78,212. The same twenty-three in 1889, returned taxes to the amount of $127,-119, an increase during the five years, as before stated, of $49,699. Two of the names selected returned in 1884, $8,792; in 1889, they returned $8,475, a loss of $317 in five years. Of this $317, $300 of it comes off of one man's return, the party in 1884 giving in $1,800 worth, and in 1889, $1,500 worth of property. The largest amount returned in 1884 by either of the names selected was $7,920, and in 1889 he returns $10,754, a gain of $2,834 for the five years.

The smallest tax-payer of the party, 1884, returns $527. In 1889, he paid tax on $1,081 worth of property, a gain during the five years of $534, or nearly fifty per cent.

The city fathers are busying themselves in beautifying the city in every possible way, while the faculty and students are making ready for the most interesting commencement the college has ever had. The programme that has been arranged is one of unusual interest, and the commencement will thoroughly demonstrate the work done during the year. The programme consists of orations, declamations, addresses, recitations, musical entertainments, drills, scientific exercises, social entertainments and numerous interesting features. cises Next Week. ments, addresses, reductions, missical entertainments and numerous interesting features. The exercises will open on Thursday night, June 5th, with a primary exhibition, and on Friday night with preparatory entertainment. Rev. D. L. Buttolph, of Marietta, will preach the sermon on Sunday morning, June 11th; General M. L. Bonham, of South Carolina, will deliver the literary address on Monday night, while Hon. Hugh H. Gordon, of Atlanta, will make the commencement address on Wednesday morning. It will be noticed that sons of governors, South Carolina and Georgia, will be leading features of the week, and that those in attendance will be treated to a rare feast of intellect and eloquence, there is no doubt. Commencement week is always a week of social enthusiasm here, and the coming week promises to be exceptionally fine in that particular.

The Great Sale at Middlesborough.

MIDDLESDOROUGH, Ky., May 30.—[Special.]
The great sale of town lots at Middlesborough closed at noon today, amid the greatest and wildest excitement. There were many visitors in the city. Hundreds of purchasers from all parts of the country attended the sales. The last lot sold for $410 per front foot. Hundreds of more lots could have been sold, but the managers of the town company thought it to be wise to declare the sales closed, fearing the excitement might carry the purchases beyond all reason. The result of the sales for three days and a half is seven hundred and two lots, at a total value of $1,019,099. This is, considered the greatest sale of town lots ever held in this country, and the people of Middlesborough are wild with pleasure and excitement. The Great Sale at Middlesborough

Athens, G., May 30.—[Special.]—The board of visitors finished their work and left for Atlanta today. The board consists of Professor J. M. Pound, of Griffin; Professor E. H. Orr, of Atlanta; Professor M. H. Looney, of Hartwell; Professor J. A. Abbott, of Macon, and Professor Pound is chairman of the board. In conversation with your correspondent he said: "That, personally, he was highly pleased with the condition of affairs here, and that he felt sure such was the opinion of the board." They had examined the papers of the graduating class and found them of an excellent nature. They had also looked into the methods of teaching very thoroughly. When asked about any proposed suggestions they intended to make, Chairman Pound said that the board had not made up their report and that it would not be done until Atlanta was reached.
"It might be safely added, however," he said, "that nothing of a startling or sensational nature will be reported." The board is an excellent one, and has handled its work in a perfect manner.

Accident to a Farmer

Accident to a Farmer.

Augusta, Ga., May 30.—[Special.]—Mr. George W. Matthews, a well-known farmer of South Carolina, living a few miles from Aiken received two quite severe and painful wounds in a runaway this morning. He had just made several purchases and got into his wagon, when the horse became frightened and dashed off, throwing him between the wheels, one of which passed over his head. He sustained two severe gashes on his head and was unconscious for a time, but his skull was not broken.

Way of the Orme Street Sewer Branch The Final Survey Being Made,

The Georgia, Carolina and Northern is setting pegs now for its route inside the city

Two preliminary surveys have been made. One enters the city near Inman park, running nearly east and west.

The other comes in a southerly direction, following the general direction of the Orme street sewer branch. The final location, it is believed, has not yet been made.

The surveying corps are between Lawrenceville and Atlanta, coming this way. The route for the entire distance will probably be located within two weeks, and then the work of grading will be taken up in earnest. General Hoke's promise was that the road would be "completed in time to move the next cotton crop," and it looks as if he is going to keep his word.

ABOUT LEE'S STATUE.

Addresses by Governor Fowle and General Fitzhugh Lee.

RICHMOND, Va., May 30.—It is estimated that 40,000 people visited Hollywood cemetery today, where memorial exercises were held, and the graves of confederates covered with flowers. From the confederate and Pickett monuments, and many mounds, the confederate battle-flag waved all day long. Many of the old southern officers, who came here to attend the Lee ceremonies, were present. Governor McKinney presided, and addresses were made by Governor Fowle, of North Carolina, and General Fitzhugh Lee. Thousands have visited the Lee monument today, and hundreds of old soldiers and scores of citizens called on General Longstreet to pay their respects.

Departure of the Brunswick Rifles. Brunswick, Ga., May 30.—[Special.]—Brunswick riflemen departed tonight for Kansas City, via the Brunswick and Western and connecting roads. The boys were eager for their departure and long before the time appointed could be seen hurrying to their armory. At 7 o'ckock the line was formed, and headed by the Atlantic band, they proceeded down Newcastle street to Monk, thence to the depot. Along the line of march throngs to the depot. Along the line of march throngs of enthusiastic citizens cheered them and at the depot a tremendous crowd had assembled. Promptly at 7:30 o'clock the special train pulled out amid the cheers of spectators and the cheering strains of "Dixie" from the band.

THEIR ARRIVAL AT WAYCROSS.

WAYCROSS, Ga., May 30.—[Special.]—The Brunswick Rifles passed through Waycross, en route to Kansas City, tonight, and were met at the depot by the Waycross Rifles, in full dress, under command of Captain Farr. A brass band and 1,000 citizens turned out. Waycross certainly gave the Brunswick Rifles a grand reception. They have a first-class coach and baggage car beautifully decorated, representing the city by the sea. As the train pulled up the Rifles gave three cheers for Waycross, and the band struck up "Dixie." THEIR ARRIVAL AT WAYCROSS Family Physician—Do you know, there seems to be a natural flavor about this food that is most appetizing? What method do you use in cooking it?

LADY OF THE HOUSE—Well, Doctor, when I was at home, my mother would have no other than a Charter Oak Stove. From my earliest recollection I remembered how she would praise it, and her cooking was superb. So when we were married I insisted on having the same kind of stove. Of course the improvements made on them since mother bought hers, are most wonderful. Ours has all the latest, including the Wire Gauze Oren Doors. I don't understand the process exactly, but they tell me that all ments cooked in ovens with those doors, retain their juices and flavors to a much greater degree than by any other means. Can you explain the theory, Charles?

CHARLES (the Husband)—I can't remember all that was told me, but I know the Doctor can give a most clear and scientific statement of the reasons can you not Doctor?

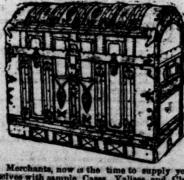

DOCTOR—Well, it is hardly professional to ask such information from a doctor; in fact, I am inclined to think he would not be helping his practice much by saying anything in favor of the Charter Oak Stoves. But as I have one in my kitchen, and know something about it, I think I can enlighten you. Of course it would take quite a long lecture to explain everything to you scientifically, and we have not time for that. Count Runford an Am egican, who was Knighted in Europe for his scientific attainments, pointed out, nearly a hundred years ago, that baking and roasting meats in air tight ovens was wrong, and he proved it by actual experiments. He asserted that it was as essential to health that our food should be cooked in pure, fresh air as that we should breathe pure, fresh air, and that air-tight ovens reader the air impure, and 'ne food cooked therein became tainted and unhealthy. But how to properly ventilate the oven was not discovered for many years after Count Runford's time. The difficulty was to all and the Rifles Are Ready to Leave This Afternoon-The Finest Train Ever Seen in the South.

THE ZOUAVES HAVE GONE TO THE GREAT DRILL,

The Atlanta Zouaves are on their way to Kansas City.
Thirty-five strong, commanded by Captain

Hollis. The company left on the Western and Atlantic railway last night at 11:15. The Rifles will leave this afternoon at 4 The Zonaves began gathering at their armo ty about dark, and at half-past 8 o'clock, headed by their band, marched to the statehouse, where they indulged in an hour's bard work. Then the company returned to their armory, where they remained until 11 o'clock when they took up the line of march for the nnion depot. All along the route the company was given hearty send-off by its friends. At the union depot the Zouaves found their sleeper laden with flowers, sent by their lady

The coach was handsomely decorated. Long streamers upon either side bore this inscrip-"Atlanta Zouaves, Atlanta to Kansas city." Then on the banners were the names of the roads over which the train rolls between Atlanta and Kansas city. With the boys were Mr. Charley Walker, of the Western and Atlantic; Mr. C. S. Shattuc of the Ohio and Mississippi, and Mr. B. F. Blake of the Burlington. This trio of railroad passenger-agents is worth any two pairs and before the first deal is over the Zouaves will make no more discards.

The company will reach St. Louis Sunday morning and will remain there all day. In the afternoon they will give an exhibition

Fully five hundred ladies and gentlemen mw the Rifles drill last night on the capitol grounds, and when the boys slept last night visions of lovely women came to them. visions of lovely women came to them.

The company marched upon the grounds just as the Zouaves came off, and until half past 10 drilled the last drill they will have until the great prize is fought for.

The work was simply great, and if the boys do as well in the great drill as they did last night the big prize will be near them.

After the drill they marched to their piano car side-tracked near the union depot.

The car was inspected by a great crowd of ladies and gentlemen, and all who saw it pronounced it a perfect palace.

It ight first piano, parlor, reclining-seat car ever known.

And as usual all new things come out of Atlanta.

Atlanta.

The train will be made up today at the East Tennessee passenger depot, at the Mitchell street crossing, and will be open to an inspection after 3 o'clock this afternoon. It will be the handsomest train ever seen in the south, and will consist of One baggage car.

"ATLANTA CONSTITUTION special car."

The train will leave the depot at 4 o'clock, and run through to Kansas City as a special.

Mr. Thad C. Sturgis, of the East Tennessee passenger department, will go through to Kansas City with the boys. Than Thad Sturgis there is no passenger agent more genial or pleasant. He has piloted excursions by the hundred, and he never fails to please. The Rifles have never been away from Atlanta without Mr. Sturgis, and they look upon him as their only chaperon—so much so that it was through him more than all other agencies that they selected the East Tennessee. Speaking of the trip last evening, he said:

"Half way across the continent in royal style. No king and his retinue ever traveled in greater splendor than the Atlanta Rifles and their friends en route to Kansas City, leaving via East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia railway, at 4 o'clock this afternoon, from Mitchell street crossing depot.

"Mothers should bring their little children to see the train so they, in their old age, can say they saw and passed through the first p a 10, parlor, reclining-seat car that was ever introduced. An inspection of the train will be allowed any time after 3 o'clock."

Mr. Kight, of the East Tennessee, yesterday sent President Oglesby, of the chamber of commerce, a letter reading:

ATLANTA, Ga., May 39, 1890.—Mr. J. G. Oglesby, President Chamber of Commerce,—City.—Dear Sir: Our Mr. Thad C. Sturgis will accompany the Atlanta Rifles' special train to Kansas City and return. This train will be composed of three bleepers, one piano, parlor, reclining-chair car and one baggage car, all handsomely decorated, with a view of not only attracting attention enroute to the manner in which our system handles large bodies of people, but for the purpose of advertising our progressive city. If you have any printed matter on hand advertising this city and its surroundings, Eleven children out of twelve need Dr. Bull's Worm Destroyer occasionally. These dainty little candies are always safe and sure.

EXPOSITION NOTES. New Exhibits Added to the Lists-Prospects Most Promising.

If signs count for aught the coming exposition in Atlanta will be the greatest ever witnessed in this region of the south. Nover was there such a rush for exhibits known to the management as has resulted since the advertisement for bids for privileges was published.

Innumerable letters of inquiry from the leading show companies in the world are pouring in upon the secretary each day, and the management is adding two or three new attractions each day.

Yesterday the C. & C. Electric Motor company, of New York, made application to exhibit its full array of electrical wonders in the way of motors, and this exhibit will, indeed, be among the most attractive, as well as the most instructive, on the grounds.

The well-known Massasoitt Grip company, of Westfield, Mass., also made application yesterday for room to exhibit their factory. The company will manufacture grips in the exposition building.

A number of rare amusements are being billed for the next exposition.

The Old, Old Story.

The Old, Old Story.

A lithle cough; a feeling ill;
A headache oft; a daily chill;
A slower walk; a quickened breath;
A frequent talk of coming death.
No strength to rise from day to day;
From loving eyes he fades away.
Now lifts no more the weary head,
The struggle's o'er; the man is dead,
is the fatal progress of covernment.

The struggle's o'er; the man is dead.

Such is the fatal progress of consumption. How often is repeated the old, old story! Yet not half so often as it was before the knowledge came to mankind that there was a discovery in medical science by which the dread disease could be arrested in its early stages and the patient restored to health. This wonderful remedy is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

Thousands of cures follow the use of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. 50 cents. Half Way Across the Continent in Royal Style.

IN HONOR OF MR. GRAMLING. The Wholesale Business Men of Atlanta Met Yesterday.

The wholesale business men of Atlanta paid a worthy tribute yesterday to the memory of Mr. John R. Gramling.

Mr. W. A. Moore was selected chairman. Mr. J. R. Mobley acted as secretary.

Whereas, Almighty God, in his inscrutable providence, has removed from our midst our friend and fellow-citizen, John R. Grambling, and, while bowing submissively to the divine decree, knowing that the wisdom of God cannot err, and that the hand that afflicts is the hand of our Father in Heaven, still it is proper that we, who knew our deceased brother well, should pay a loving tribute to his memory, and give public expression to our esteem for him, putting on record our testimonial to his exalted character; be it, therefore,

Resolved, That in the death of Honorable John R. Gramling Atlanta has lost one of its most useful citizens, whose untimely demise, in the full vigor of mature manhood, is universally lamented by our citizens as a public calaunity. A man of spotless integrity, untinching in the discharge of his duties, public and private, having no other aims, save those that beful the character of a patriot and a Christian, and accomplishing these high aims successfully, through his unaltered devotion to the right, his life was an honor to our city and state, and a blessing to his fellow-men.
Resolved, That not only the commercial interests of this city, but every interest representing the dignity, growth and prosperity of Atlanta, has suffered a grievous loss in his untimely death. His ready hand, liberal public spirit, wise business foresight and indomitable energy manifested themselves to the benefit of all, and all are equally deprived, by his death, of a masteful man, whose place it will be difficult to fill.

Resolved, That our sincere sympathy and condelence is hereby extended to his bereaved family. We share with them the sorrow of their irreparable loss, and tenderly commend them to the God of love and mercy, who alone can comfort them in their affliction.

Resolved, further, That these resolutions be printed in the city papers, and a copy transmitted to the family of our deceased brother.

How many pass through life never knowing what it means to feel well. How many continue to exist who would gladly lay down and rest forever. With some it requires more courage to live than to die. They live for those they love. They live to be a protection and provide for helpless little ones. Ah! sad it is when a kind parent is afflicted with aches and pains, nervousness, weakness, dysnessia, etc. when a kind parent is afflicted with aches and pains, nervousness, weakness, dyspepsia, etc. And yet, is not a parent to blame who will thus suffer, when means of relief are right at hand. Many who long suffered in a state of chronic ill-health, whose lives were made miserable by their feelings of distress, and who found no relief from doctors, have quietly begun a use of Dr. John Bull's Sarsaparilla, and found health and strength therein. A word to the wise is sufficient. Demand this remedy of your druggist. Take no other.

The Young Men Do Tonor to Their Precep-tors in Their Work Yesterday - Num-ber of Them Carry Off Three.

The school opened last September with

The entertainment yesterday was in the way of a reunion, and opened with the customary and would have done credit to students much older than they.

This was followed by individual recitations from the members of the same class, all of which were highly creditable. There was next a squad drill by four little boys of the kindergarten school, commanded by Mr. Finchell, of the middle school, and the little fellows acquitted themselves in handsome style.

Then followed a drop-out drill of small boys of the lower school, for which a prize of a silver medal had been offered. The prize was won by Master Clarence Stockdell, who made a fine showing in the drill.

The squad drill of the regular company, the Gordon School Cadets, was next on the programme, and this was an elegant performan Messis. Finchell, Stephens, Boyd and Strickler composed the squad.

A drop-out drill by the company came next, and the cadets went through all the evolutions in an admirable manner. Mr. Finchell won the drill, but the prize was awarded to Mr. Strickler, because of the fact that the medal had been offered for the most faithful student at drills during the term, and Mr. Strickler's record was considered in connection with the drill so that he won the handsome gold medal.

A spelling match followed, the sides chosen by Mr. Harris and Mr. Speer. The contest was a hot one, but Mr. Speer stood up last and won the prize, a set of Cooper's "Leather Stocking Tales."

Rev. Dr. H. C. Morrison awarded the prizes,

Rev. Dr. H. C. Morrison awarded the prizes, delivering an appropriate and congratulatory address to each of those who had won.
Besides the prizes contended for, there was a Legion of Honor medal offered for deportment, a silver scroll with the legend, "Legion of Honor," engraved upon it. Thirteen boys, Masters Brittan, Farrar, Gresham, Hill, Stockdell, Leonard, H. Werner, Forbes, Kirkpatrick, Stephens, Carter, Speer and Matthews won these medals.

A silver medal for the best score in target practice was awarded to Ovid Stewart.

Ernest Hallman won the prize for never having missed a day, nor having been late, during the year. It was a handsome volume, "The Gordon medal of scholarship was carried off by Hugh Brittan.

AT AUCTION

These lots are all 50x200 feet each to a 16-food alley and front a beautifully graded avenue 50 feet in width and leading directly to the Piedmont Driving park club-house. They are right in the line of rapid improvement and development, and only a short distance east of Peachtree st., where more improvements will be made this year than any other street in the city. Some of the lots are covered with a fine oak grove and all lie well and are desirable. The locality is entirely free of every objectionable feature and is sure to build up with a good class of houses as soon as sub-divided. The handsome residence of Dr. B. F. Walker is at the corner of Piedmont and Road avenues and adjoining the property now offered for sale. Everyone who ever purchased at a sale of the original sub-division a piece of property in Atlanta, made money, and now is your opportunity to take advantage of the same circumstances. The terms of sale are very liberal. 1-3 cash, balance 1 and 2 years, 8 per cent interest. Free ride at 2 and 2:15 p. m. on Peachtree cars to the sale on Wednesday. May 28th.

the regular session of the circuit court were argued yesterday and disposed of by the special Two motions in railroad cases were settled The case of R. T. Allison vs. the Richmond and Danville railroad, which was tried in the city court of Atlanta sometime ago and re-moved to the federal courts on the local prejudice act, came up yesterday, in the form of a motion to remand the case back to the city court. The case is a suit for damage for personal injuries, and the motion to re-mand was granted, so that the case will be carried back to the city court. It was shown that the plaintiff was a resident of South Carolina at the time the case was filed.

The case of Jerre Lumpkin against the Georgia Pacific was a similar one to that of Allison. This case was carried before the Fulton superior court at first, but was brought before the United States court on the local prejudice act afterwards. The motion to remand was overrifled Judge Newman, as the evidence showed the plaintiff to be a citizen of Georgia.

In the case of the Chattahoochee Brick com-pany against the Rome and Carrollton Construction company, which was tried and settled some time ago, excepting the costs in the case, was finished yesterday by Judge Newman rendering a DYING BY INCHES.

M. T. Whitlock Will Soon Receive His Pardon.

M. T. Whitlock will soon receive his pardon. If not from the state authorities, he will receive the final pardon from a higher power. He is dying by inches. His malady has taken on a more virulent form, and he is now perfectly helpless. He sits in his rolling chair day after day, and his only change of position is when some of the family move him from onplace to another, in the house and on the phazea.

On his feet and legs the gangrene has eaten the flesh away in places, and has left the bone hare. His condition is most pitable, and his sufferings have been more than one would think that a man could bare and live.

Except for the visits of his physicians and a few friends who have been faithful to him in his terrible struggle, his life has been brightened by very few rays of sunshine during the long, weary months of his illness.

THE BUTCHERS AND BAKERS.

Enthusiastic Meeting Held Thursday The butchers and bakers held a large and enthusiastic meeting at the hall, No. 93 East Alabama street, Thursday evening.

The principal object of the meeting was to clear up the accounts of the big picnic held a few days ago.

The members responded generously, and all the accounts were settled, and the butchers and bakers are ready for any other jollification that may be proposed during the course of the summer.

The organization is composed of some of the best citizens of Atlanta, and the members are determined to keep the material and personnel of the butchers and bakers up to the highest possible standard of excellence.

WEST END NOTES.

Miss Maggie Lawson will leave in a few days for a two months' visit to friends in Virginia.

the hill in an opposite direction, so that no forcepump will be necessary to get the water to run off.

The Ladies' Aid society, of the West End Baptist church, is composed of about forty members, and another such a band of Christian workers could scarcely be found anywhere. Whatever they undertake, they perform, and they do not hestiate to undertake anything for the good of the church. The society was organized less than two years ago, with Mrs. H. M. Abbett as president, a position she has held ever since, with credit to herself and profit to the society. From a report, made by the treasurer, Miss Katie Howard, it is learned that more than six hundred dollars have been raised by the society and expended in furnishing the church. The carpet, half the cost of the chairs, the organ, the silver water service, and numerous other articles of furniture, have been purchased and paid for by them; and yet, they are not altogther happy, because they have not done even more. The amount of money raised by them ils surprising to themselves, yet not a dollar has come from suppers or entertaluments of any kind, which are frequently so common in some communitues that they become little less than a nuisance. Too much praise cannot be given the Baptist ladies of West End, for it was they that built the church, at least without their aid and encouragement the dog fennel would now be growing where the handsome brick church now stands.

Here is central income property, almost in the very heart of the city, just what capitalists are looking for every day. It is always rented, and will forever pay a certain and handsome interest on a large amount of money. It is just one block from Pryor and Peachtree streets, and a few steps from the Kimball house and the union depot. Real estate has advanced in this vicinity at least 50 per cent in the last 60 days. A great deal of this block has been sold in the past few weeks upon which an immense expenditure of money will be made during the present year. No part of Atlanta has been more sought after of late than this, simply because property here has been too low. Now is your time to buy central real estate, for parties with surplus funds are on the hunt for good, safe investments, and we all know Atlanta dirt beats anything in the world. Buy now, and reap the benefit of a certain increase in value. Attend the sale and look to your interest; many people miss bargains by their absence.

Mr. Williams is one of the most accurate and thorough historians in the state, and has secumulated in a quiet way a mass of very valuable and interesting material. Mr. Williams was in the office of the secretary of state yesterday, endeavoring to fix, from the earliest records, the location of "Brother Herbert's" farm. A deed to the Gibbs place is recorded, but none of the Herbert plantation. "Gibbs Cross Roads" took its name, undoubtedly, from the Gibbs plantation.

from these records Mr. Williams is endeavoring to locate the grave of John Major. He has written to the pastor in charge of the church near there to assist him in the work.

A ROBBER CHIEF'S MONEY. The Finding of the Buried Treasure in Mis

almost forgotten story connected with 16, and also with the man who so many years ago sank it in the earth on the banks of Conehatta creek.

It is said that John Copeland was born and reared in the good old county of Wayne, was very prepossessing in appearance, and even in early childhood developed a strength of mind and a fertility of resource that was the wonder and admiration of all who came in contact with him.

In school he excelled, and at first many were the bright glances thrown into a future thought to be filled with nothing but honor and glory for the Wayne county boy.

Then a faint whisper ran here and there, and by and by grew into open declarations of shame—the youth was a thief. At first the statements of those who made the assertion were not credited, but as time went on young Copeland's greed for gold increased, and as he knew no such word as fear his peculations grew to be of almost daily occurrence.

The first thing he was known to have stolen was a pocket-knife of the Bariow pattern, and it seems that from this time on he must have let go all restraint, as, after that, nothing could be left within his reach with any degree of safety. At last the tapping of a till in a country store caused him to leave home, and soon thereafter the Copeland can was of the routhern states. Before organizing this band the young man served an apprentice-hip with the famous John A. Murrell, and before leaving him was second in command of that desperate gang of cut-throats and robbers.

He quarreled with one of Murrell's favorites, however, on a little stream north of where the town of Water Valley now stands, and the affair ended in the death of the man who had provcked his anger.

Knowing that it would be dangerous, or, affair ended in the death of the man who had proviced his anger.

Knowing that it would be dangerous, or, what is mere probable, being tired of playing second fiddle, he resolved to return to the Murrell band no more; and so, after pitching the dead man into the creek, he mounted his horse and rode toward the Alabama line.

When a short distance east of Graysport, he met a sheriff's posse, and a fight ensued. Copeland managed to escape, but was severely wounded, and after going eighty or ninety miles, fell from his horse utterly exhausted and with a raging fever.

miles, fell from his herse utterly exhausted and with a raging fever.

Bessie Langdon, teacher of a district school, while returning home that evening, found the robber-chief and had him catried to her father's house. He was unknown in that locality, and, on recovering consciousness, gave an assumed name, and easily concocted a suitable story concerning his wound.

As is usual in such cases, the young lady nursed him back to health, and after first capturing his. The one redeeming trait in this man's life seems to have been his love for that pretty young school-teacher, and when ready to leave, he told her that his business demanded him, but that when worth $10,000 he would come for her. She had no idea what that his puisess really was but trust. LOST HER HEART, idea what that business really was, but, trust-ing him implicitly, bade him a tearful gooding him implicitly, bade him a tearful goodbye.

A short while after that Copeland had his band organized and his career of crime commenced in earnest. His masterly intellect rendered it an easy matter for him to form plans, which, after bringing enormous sums of ill-gotten wealth, always enabled him to escape. One of his first actions was to bury $10,000, as he fully intended, when tired of his career, to marry Bessie Langdon and leave the United States. For years he plied his vocation and, it is said, finally so far resumed his friendship with Murrell as to join him in some of his most important ventures. Bessie Langdon discovered who her lover really was and died of a broken heart.

When Copeland learned of her death he grew desperate, and from then until the end, it is said, his men often remonstrated at the dangerous plans he formed and the reckless manner in which he exposed both them and himself. Instead of taking up the $10,000 and spending it in riotous living, he did exactly the opposite, and continued to gia, at that time, were embraced in one conference.

Major is described as a man of great earnestmess and of most lovable character, his whole soul being devoted to his work. He traveled and preached through the counties of Richmond, Wilkes and Burke, and that section of the state. He was a learned and eloquent man, and his preaching was marvelous. Many were converted, and what few Methodists were already here were enthused and organized.

WHERE HE WAS BURIED.

Bishop Asbury says in his journal, dated 1790, that he "preached at Bibb's Cross roads in Lincoln county, and spent the night at Brother Herbert's, where John Major was buried."

The home of Mr. Herbert was on Fishing creek, Lincoln county, near Bibb's crossroads.

in different portions of this state until shortly before his capture.

He now drank to excess, and often let his passion get the better of discretion. On one occasion he met two farmers in the road and, becoming angry at their scarcity of funds, chased them five miles and into the city of Mobile.

He was alone at the time and narrowly evaded capture. As his sprees were now of almost daily occurrence, Copeland gave the map, on which were little dots showing the location of buried treasures, to his first lieutenant, a man by the name of Moffit. This man had the misfortune to lose the paper, and his life paid for his carelessness.

The band was soon broken up by Copeland's carelessness, and finally after being sorely wounded, he was captured near Brandon.

Shortly before he was hung thoughts of Shortly before he was hung thoughts of Bessie Langdon must have touched him, for he told of the whereabouts of his property, and, as nearly as possible, the location of all the buried money. He said the original $10,000 was buried near Conehatta Creek, in North buried money. He said the original $10,000 was buried near Conehatta Creek, in North Newton, and expressed the hope that it would some day be found and put to a good use.

Every year or so since that time parties have searched for the buried money, but as there were many who discredited the robber chief's statement no organized attempt at finding it was ever made. When Mr. Leech, who is an industrious farmer, but a comparatively poor man, discovered the gold, he said nothing about it until it had been removed to a place of cafety. Then he is reported to have said that he was ditching in a reed-brake, when he suddenly noticed a slender rock protruding from the ground. Knowing that it had been placed there to mark the spot, he instantly thought of John Copeland, as the place where the robber was thought to have buried his money was not 400 yards distant. Sticking his spade into the ground, it struck something hard, and a few moments later he had raked out several rotten pieces of a keg and $10,000 in gold.
